FOREWORD

THE search for beauty has been considered peculiar to artists and poets, while its application has been limited to but a chosen few. We have gradually become oblivious to the fact that the power to conceive beauty lies within ourselves; in our hands is the clay---it is for us to mould it. The 1934 Evergreen and Gold belongs to the Province. It has caught and portrayed the rugged beauty---the massive power---of its mountains, rivers and primitive areas. May we never suffer our immediate environments to blind our eyes to the beauty that surrounds us.

In dedicating this volume to the rugged beauty of nature, we assume the privilege of expressing the University's appreciation to the Province we all love so well!

But al that he myghte of his freendes lerte,

Of studie took he most care and most hede,
Noght a word more spak he than was nede

For if a preest be foul, on whom we truste,

DR. WALLACE

TO the graduates of 1934 this volume of the Evergreen and Gold will recall many memories, which you will learn to count among your richest possessions as the years go past. Badinage and serious discussions, games fought hard and prizes won, friendships made and held the firmer with the years, enthusiasms and disappointments, spare living and not infrequently hard thinking, in a word, the scholarly seriousness and the jesting which, as Plato puts it, is seriousness' sister—of all this your graduating year book will bring back the memories to you. And with these memories there will come, though only by implication in this volume, the thought of the enthusiasms of a teacher, of the thrill of a mental discovery, and of a revelation of the meaning of life to you, which were the gifts of the gods, if they were kind, to you in your student days.

I cannot wish you better than that these may be the memories of your Alma Mater. If they so be, you will have lived well here. She will be solicitous for you and for herself, that you and she may continue to think well of each other. May you prosper, each and every one.

FACULTY OF AGRICULTURE

The Faculty of Agriculture at the University of Alberta was established in May, 1915. A three-year course leading to a degree was organized and was made open to students recommended by the Schools of Agriculture as well as those holding credits from other institutions.

It was in May, 1920, that a four-year course, leading to the degree of B.Sc., was established. The entrance requirements were fixed at matriculation so that students from High Schools would be eligible.

In addition to the above two courses a six-year course combining Arts and Agriculture was inaugurated.

Research, and experiment not only in field crop work but in teaching and study departments, has always been the aim of the Faculty of Agriculture and its Dean, Professor E. A. Howes.

DEAN E. A. HOWES

FACULTY OF APPLIED SCIENCE

The Faculty of Applied Science was originally a part of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences, whose four professors lectured to the first classes of the University of Alberta in September, 1908.

In the autumn of 1913, however, the department of civil engineering and allied subjects was erected into the Faculty of Applied Science as it is known today.

Up to 1911, classes were conducted in Queen Alexandra, and then Strathcona High School. Athabasca Hall was built during 1911 and was partially used for classrooms until the Arts Building was completed in October, 1915. In 1919, the engineering laboratories were added to the University buildings.

Professor Boyle was made dean of the faculty in 1921, but was replaced by Professor Wilson in 1929 when he joined the staff of the National Research Council at Ottawa.

FACULTY OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

In 1912 a department of extension was added to the original Faculty of Arts and Sciences at the University of Alberta for the purpose of increasing the scope of its educational work and thus reaching the people of the province more fully.

The department of civil engineering ceased to form part of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences in 1913. The Faculty of Applied Science was erected in its place.

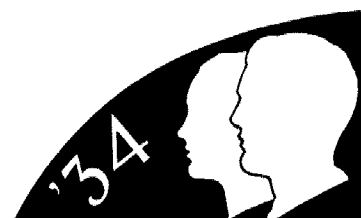

The Faculty of Law was created and separated off from Arts and Sciences in 1912.

In October, 1913, instruction was begun in the Faculty of Medicine and by 1923 a complete medical course was offered.

Professor W. A. Kerr has been Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences since 1914.

DEAN W. A. R. KERR

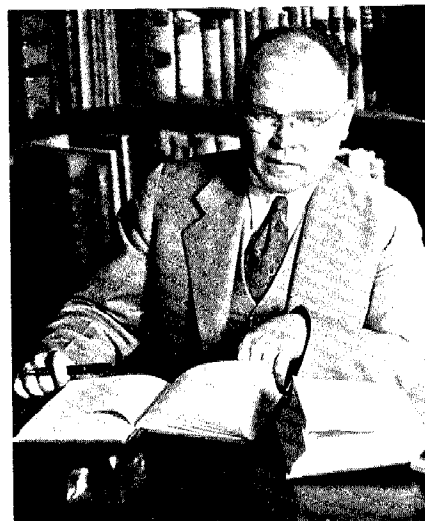

LAW

The Faculty of Law was instituted in 1919 with sixty students enrolled. The case system of teaching was adopted in contrast to many other Canadian Universities, the students learning their law by reading the actual cases and discussing them in class. All students argue a Moot each year, the bench consisting of Seniors or overtown lawyers.

Most of the Graduates have been articled with local firms and when admitted to the bar have continued to practise in the province. Three of the Graduates are on the lecturing staff of the Faculty, as well as practising law. Mr. Alan Harvey, Mr. H. A. Dyde and Mr. L. Y. Cairns, two of whom were Rhodes scholars from this University. Dean J. A. Weir and Mr. M. M. MacIntyre lecture full time and Mr. Dixon Craig and Mr. Geo. Steer give courses as well as conducting large practises.

DEAN J. A. WEIR

DEAN A. C. RANKIN

FACULTY OF MEDICINE

It was in October, 1913, that instruction began in the Faculty of Medicine. But it was not until 1917 that dentistry was organized under the Faculty of Medicine. In 1924 a complete five-year course leading to a degree was offered, and dentistry became a school under the Faculty of Medicine.

Another department of the Faculty of Medicine, namely pharmacy, was erected into the school of pharmacy in 1917, and was attached to the Faculty of Arts and Sciences.

It was not until 1924 that the school of nursing was attached to the Faculty of Medicine.

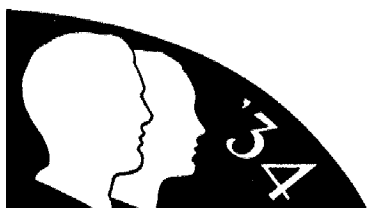

It is due to the generosity of the Rockefeller Foundation in placing half a million dollars at the disposal of the University for medical teaching purposes, that a complete medical course has been offered ever since 1923.

THE REGISTRAR

Since the graduation of the first class in 1912 the University of Alberta has attempted to maintain contact with her graduates with the result that the present addresses of not more than ten per cent are unknown. This gratifying result has been achieved by continued co-operation between the graduates and the University. For some time the assistant registrar has also been the secretary of the alumni association. It is hoped that the graduates of 1934 will maintain the excellent tradition established by their predecessors by (1) notifying the Registrar's office promptly of any change of address, and (2) forwarding relevant information concerning themselves or other graduates. Information concerning employment is immediately passed on to graduates likely to be interested, if their addresses are known.

PROF. A. E. OTTEVELL

MISS F. E. DODD

DEAN OF WOMEN

At the beginning of the year 1933-34 a very promising freshman class enrolled in our University. The development of the women students, especially those in residence, has been very satisfactory.

Perhaps this year we are just beginning to reach the corner from the shadows of which we never seem able to coax Prosperity. At least it was with an encouraging enthusiasm that the new classes got into their stride. There has been a spirit of good-fellowship and harmony permeating everything. Friendly co-operation has continued between the women students, and the organizations of the students as a whole, and the administrators of the University.

Looking back along the road we have come, we are filled with a deep sense of satisfaction and inspired with a new courage to carry on.

THE PROVOST

It was in September of 1911 that Athabasca Hall was erected and became available for use. At this time Professor MacEachran took over the disciplinary duties there. Three years later the office of Provost was created, and Dr. MacEachran accepted the position. In that capacity he has acted ever since.

The Provost is responsible for discipline, exercising general supervision over the conduct and welfare of the students, especially those in residence. In case of any serious indiscipline on the part of a student, the Provost is head of a committee of investigation. All student functions are held with the sanction of the Provost. But Dr. MacEachran's primary duty is to act as a mediator between the students and administrators of the University.

DR. G. W. KERBY

MOUNT ROYAL COLLEGE

Twenty-two years ago last September Mount Royal College was completed, and began its mission of education and character-building for the youth of the province.

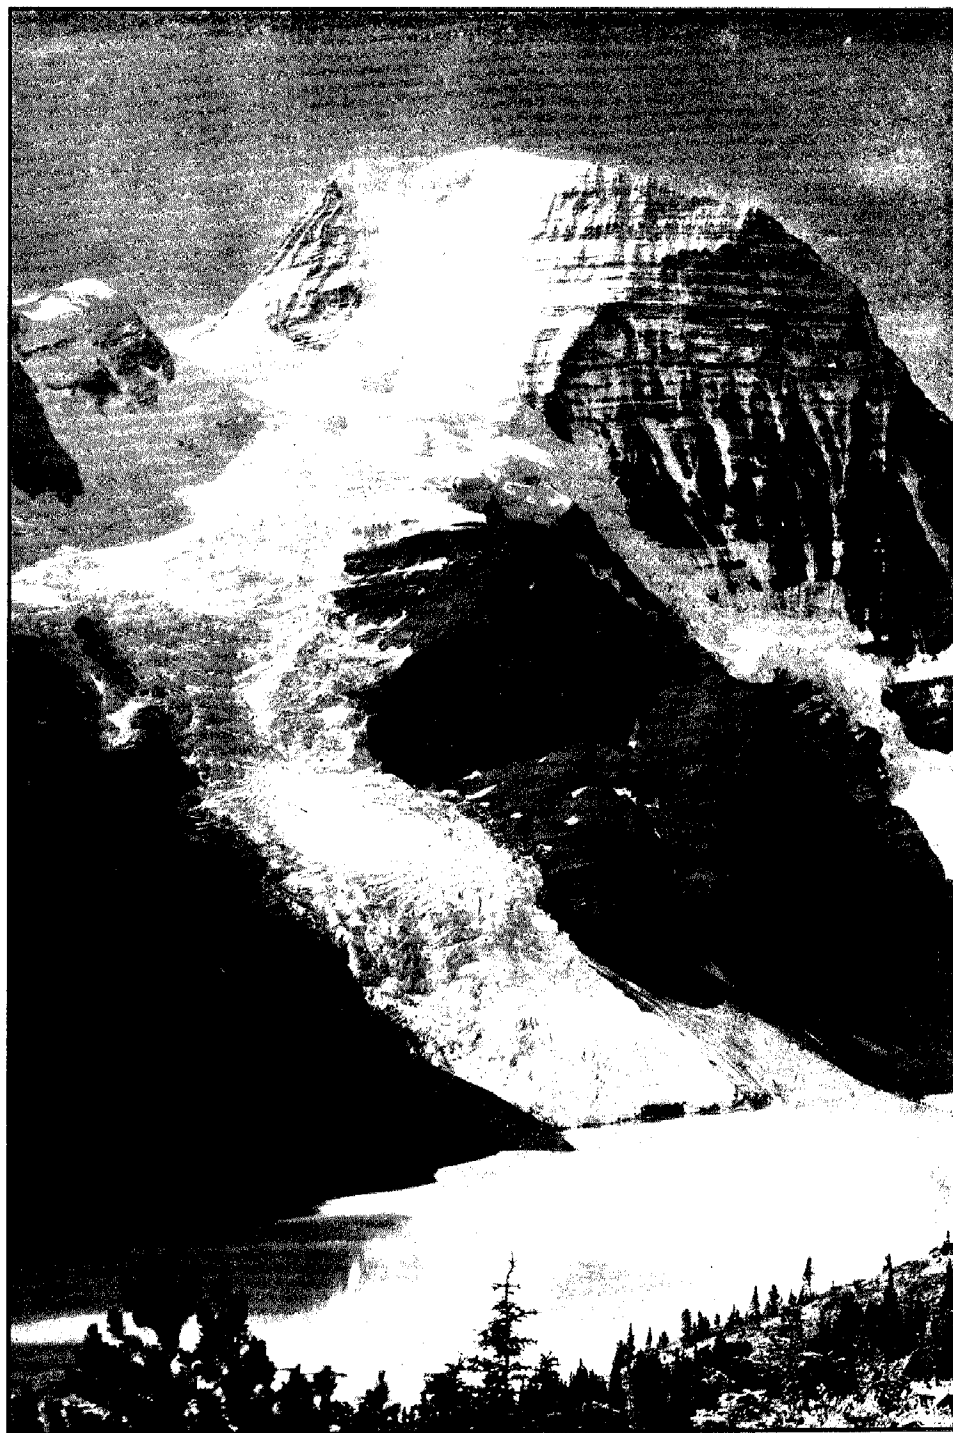

In 1931, negotiations were consummated with the University of Alberta through its Senate, for the establishing of Mount Royal College as a junior college.

Mount Royal offers a wide community service to the people of Calgary and Southern Alberta. Its first and second year university courses leading to the degrees of B.A. and B.Sc. in Arts, its cultural courses, its residential features, its well-organized high school departments, its speech and drama activities, its commercial classes and its conservatory of music have won for it a place in the confidence of the public.

HISTORY OF CLASS '34

RONALD WALLACE

*Into this Universe (ty) and Why not Knowing
Nor Whence, like water will'y-nilly flowing;
And out of it, as Wind along the Waste,
I know not Whither, will'y-nilly blowing.*

We came in, naive and hopeful freshmen in the dollar wheat days; but we could not remain naive for long. Certain insensitive individuals called Sophomores soon formed us into curtsying platoons. And we doubted whether our hair would grow again.

Our first class elections set a precedent in enthusiasm. Fights, great floating banners and electrically lit signs served to proclaim the virtues of our candidates.

Chem. I introduced most of us to our honorary president, Dr. Stover. Under his early guidance, many of our class characteristics were formed. But not until our sophomore year, because of freshman regulations, were we able to follow him completely, e.g., the matter of bow ties.

In our second year, we showed our sophomore cynicism with "Dregs" which won the Inter-year Shield. This play was so successful that a well known Canadian periodical of high moral tone was shocked by our ribaldry.

Class '34, from the first, entered enthusiastically into campus activities. Our members have been prominent in so many ways that the task of recording them seems formidable.

The class was soon represented on many athletic teams. Senior rugby and hockey had their freshman and sophomore stars. Swimming, track, and inter-faculty sports were helped by our efforts.

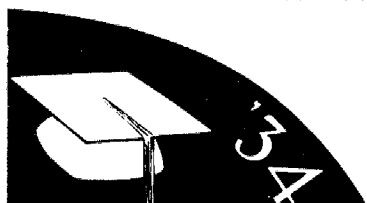

The campus clubs felt our influence (excluding the Arts Club). The Arts Club hike had been our first disillusionment. Particularly in dramatics were we to the fore, always being well represented in the spring plays. In our junior year, the best actor and actress shields in the inter-year play competition were won by us. We are confident that from the scintillating array of dramatic stars in our quarter of the heavens has emanated a light, which like the rays of Sirius, will shine on generations yet to come.

In our junior year also, some of our members were instrumental in the formation of the Ski Club, now so popular on the campus.

Wheat was now fifty cents a bushel, but nothing daunted, we put on a very memorable Junior Prom. Igloos, the cool blue tint of ice in the polar night, the northern lights sustained our Arctic motif successfully. Another of our innovations was the broadcasting of the Prom. music over the University radio station.

In all fields of thought and action in which we have not been facile principes, we have been distinguished by the unobtrusiveness of perfect breeding. However, if any item of this panegyric should seem slightly inflated, or the style florid, be it remembered that our cup of eulogy could not be full unless it contained six hundred words.

The aesthetic beauty of our opening text should not be marred by critical qualifications. Otherwise, truth would compel us to state that the last two lines are not typical of the true inwardness of our minds. We hope that life and opportunity will not find us inadequate.

VALEDICTORY

We are taking leave of our University and of its interesting life. The routine of lectures and studies will be no more for us. Perhaps some of us are eager to be off to larger fields and bolder enterprises; others are regretting the fact that the even course of life here will be interrupted.

It requires no super-brilliant intellect for a graduate of 1934 to realize that the world he is entering is not one in which success will accompany easy endeavor. Much as we may take a sad delight in ruing the death of so-called good times, it is toward the future with its dark perplexities and ominous forebodings that we must turn. The fact that we shall have to work, and work diligently to accomplish anything in this now chaotic world, should be an added incentive to us.

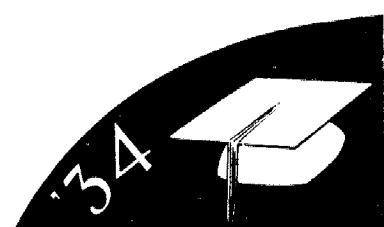

MARGARET SMITH

A University training has moulded our characters. Three or four years ago, we represented the "raw material," for we must admit that our ideas and sympathies were then rather narrow. Yet now an intangible powerful influence has, we hope, broadened our interests and widened the range of our sympathies. The education we have received here is not intended to be the closing stage in our search for knowledge—it is a driving force, putting new life into our desire for learning. The motto of the University, "Quaecumque Vera," is one which might be usefully appropriated by each individual graduate.

It is not necessary to remark on the feelings every one of us experiences upon leaving our University. We hate to think of our happy comradeship broken, of the associations we have formed shattered. These have had an indelible effect upon us, and their spirit will continue to influence us long after exact places and names have been forgotten. We may look back on four short years, with their medley of achievements and frustrations, happiness and disappointments, and wish to retrace our steps. We have succeeded in overcoming certain difficulties with due guidance, but now we must confront, alone, difficulties far more perplexing. We will succeed only in so far as we are strong in our reliance on the knowledge and experience we have gained at University.

Whatever our purpose might have been in coming to University, were it the desire for culture in the fields of literature or philosophy, or the need for practical training in the sciences, or merely the idea that this was a good way to fill in time, it is certain that we have come to realize that our college careers have, if we have pursued them with any degree of sincerity, been worth while. The intensive training which we have been afforded in our various fields, should fit us for a vigorous activity in our chosen future work.

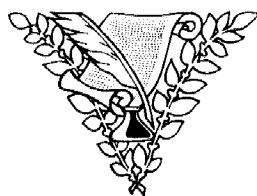

There has been much said in the past about the obligations incumbent on a University graduate, but these obligations were never so evident as they are in the present day. A greater opportunity for education, for the development of qualities of leadership, implies a greater duty towards our fellow-men. There may have been in the past the choice between the easy and the hard road, the one for the indolent, the other for the energetic. But it appears that now the easy path has been closed, its too great popularity having cheapened it, and the other arduous course is the only one open to us. Indeed, it was never so apparent that well-educated people are expected to strive to lead the less fortunate ones, and that it is our duty to apply ourselves, with all the resources of our education, to the attempted solutions of the problems of our day. We cannot hope to find a panacea for all ills, but we can hope, through our earnest endeavor, to advise and to lead the way.

There are also our obligations to the University which fostered us: to live up to its standards and ideals wheresoever the coming year may scatter us. In some measure we may repay it for the education, experience and inspiration we have gained from it.

Such a nebulous thing as University spirit does not, perhaps, mean much to us until we are on the eve of our departure. Yet there has been that oneness of feeling when we, all together, have been excited to fever-pitch in watching our teams compete with others, when we have passed through the nervous tension and agony of examinations. We shall, perhaps, never again experience the flow of sympathy from one to another, we will miss our daily companionship with many people engaged in the same pursuits, and we will note the sad ending of our joyous activities together. Our years at this University will come later to mean to us more than a culling of knowledge and the acquiring of a good scholastic standing—it will be to us a period in which we were conscious of a mutual striving together for the same end. If we are able to carry this same spirit into our future relationships in the world at large, to extend the same sympathy and co-operation into our work there, we will have carried away from the University something invaluable to the harmonious solution of world-wide problems.

Let us remember our University with pride in the high standards it has set up for us, and with gratitude for the opportunities in education it has afforded us.

The event of graduation is an occasion, not merely of mad rejoicing on the acquisition of a degree, but one of solemn consideration of the places we seek to take in society at large. Let us go forth with strong hearts and active minds into a distressing world, firm in the belief that our knowledge and training will inspire us to do much.

The curtain descends; the scene changes, and Class 1933-34 moves reluctantly toward the exit. Beyond the threshold lies the waiting world, behind it the years—pleasant years—of university life.

Upon that step, which for years we have striven to cross, we pause and cast a lingering glance behind. The memories of happy occasions flash through our minds—the associations with fellow students, recollections of our many and varied extra curricular activities. But we must move on, for others come behind to take our place.

And so we look into the future and find it not without hope. World conditions from which we have been sheltered during the past few years are definitely improving. Yet the road ahead is still strewn with obstructions which will test the courage and perseverance of young men and women.

It was once said —

*"Give me standing room
And I will move the world."*

Our Interpretation is —

*"Give us standing room
And we will try."*

Juniors! Ponder deeply. Years have passed since first we entered, humble in our state of Freshie sin. Members of a dying race we wend our way through academic halls—for are we not the last to quaff life to the dregs, the last to have been chastened, bib and garter, and to have also held the grave responsibility of introducing to a class of fledgelings the mysteries of our Alma Mater.

Class '35 has just reason to feel proud. Its members lead in every campus organization and activity. On the field of sport, in the realm of scholarship, and in the Evergreen and Gold, the Gateway—where you will.

In Debating and Dramat, the Junior impress has been deep. The Bates College, McGoun Cup, Provincial and Radio verbal tilts all had our representatives. Again the thirty-fivers have shown also their histrionic flair, and have retained the Inter-year Play shield as well as the lofty honor of having the best actress within our ranks.

Finally, the Prom this year was a devilish success. A portly contribution will greet us in our Senior year.

JUNIOR CRITIQUE

The vaulted hall is silent. Hooded, clutching empty cardboard cylinders, the sable gowned procession moves away. A last figure kneels. He is murmured o'er, receives his tube, and finally descends. The "Seniors" are no more.

Who and of what celestial substance are these Seniors—soon to pass into a world for many seemingly as cold and empty as the tubes they bear? Gods on Parnassus or warts upon Mt. Ossa? A hollow voice comes echoing through the catacombs of fate: "Time—time alone can tell." Lurks there a Varsity Hampden or some mute inglorious Milton amid these serried ranks of erudition? So we hope in pious awe—and so many a fond parent's heart believes. But as our Junior fancy lulls itself with such beatific dreams another, harsher vision flits across our mental screen—of half-remembered martinets in days not long ago, clothed in all the pomp of new found dignity and bawling "Speak up, Freshie! What's the highest form of animal life?"

We answered then. Perhaps the corrosive spirit of icy criticism or the high impersonal search for Quaecumque Vera have brought a slight reservation to the minds of those who gave that answer in the days of callow youth. But on the other hand with the passing of the years, and the friendships which replace those initiatory rites, many of us may no longer grudge that verdict. "Seniors" are no longer the "class above." We think of them and know them as personalities, leaders on the campus, and as friends.

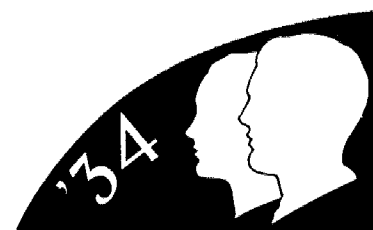

Personalities. Individually we shall remember you as individuals. It is true that when you shall have left our halls and labs, there will remain as concrete proof of your existence here merely a bit of statuary or perhaps a bit of plumbing for the Arts Rotunda—cuts and write-ups in the dusty Gateway files—and officially a mass of records, cards, and foolscap tomes of closely written facts once known. Yet that is not everything. Your personality will be impressed on all that constitutes our University. Victories in the field, successes in debate and in dramat. Innovations in the things that count. Ideas—guerdons—characters—all go to make of it a different and a better place for your having been.

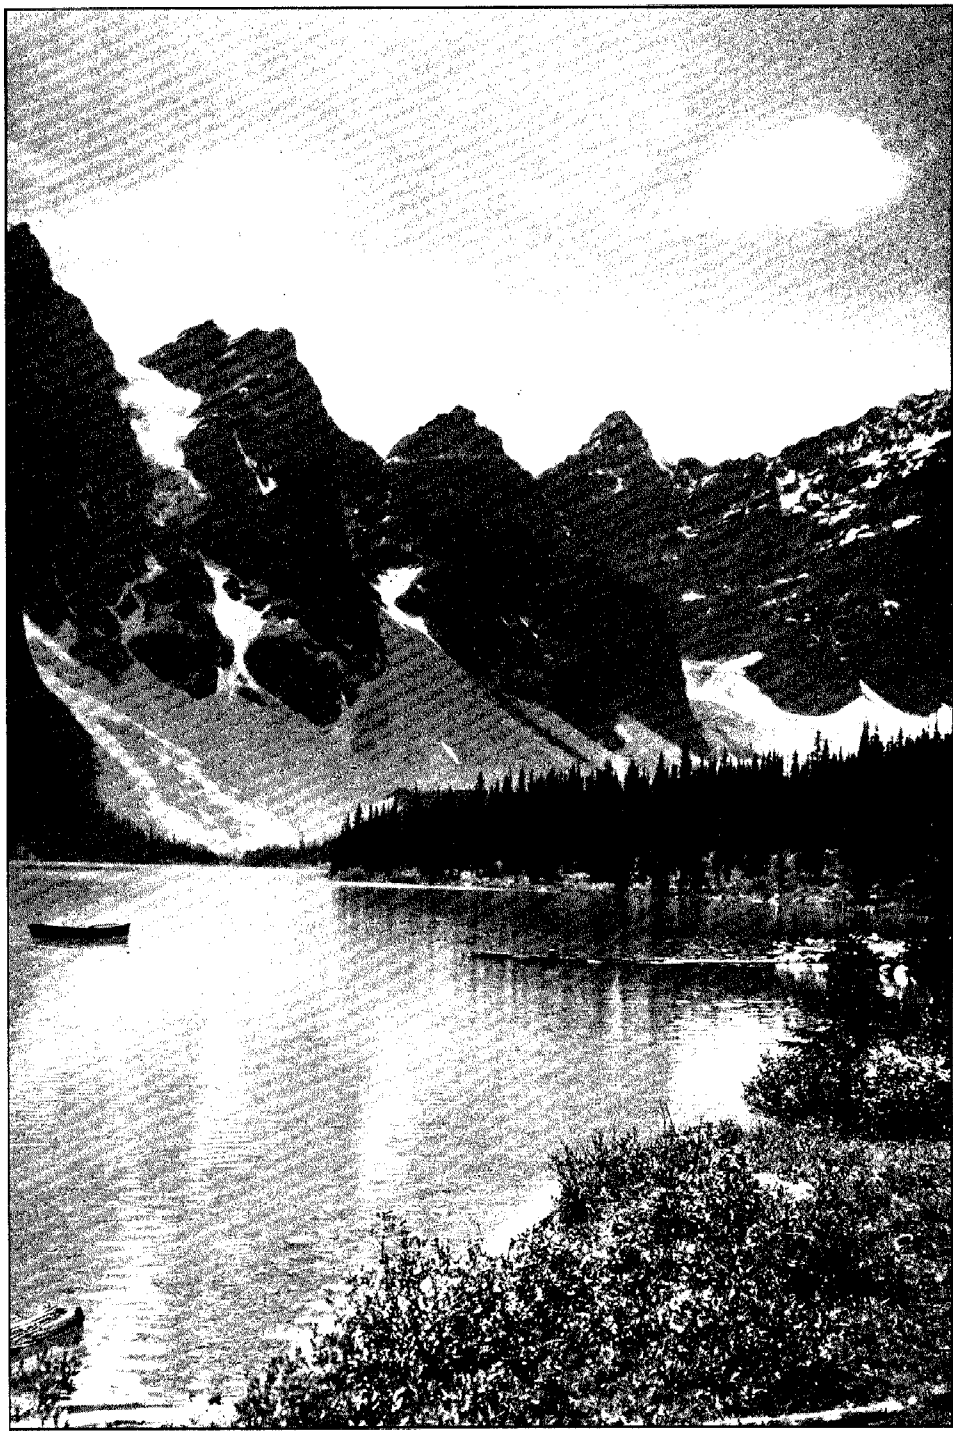

One need not reiterate the illustrious scroll of the great which you have produced. One need not indulge in flights of itemized panegyric anent the part that you have played in sports, literaria, et al. Such have been done elsewhere. The hoary chronicler of Class '34 reviews the imposing list. Let us all have faith in his integrity. Besides, no class of any worth could possibly go through our hallowed halls without leaving its mark on every field of student life. So we shall not insult you with the obvious. But honorable mention must be given your invaluable contributions of genius to such noble intellectual societies as the Union of Gateway Philosophers and Poets and (seriously) the Dramat, whose activities have been infused with a rosy and renascent glow since Class thirty-four first swept the boards with Dregs. Finally, the spot-light of renown must fall upon each member of that host of Seniors who in every sport, organization and activity have given so lavishly of their talent and their time.

The world lies virginal before you. We who are left behind bid you God-speed. And when you've gone, ghosts of your memories will haunt our corridors, mingled with the wraiths of the many passed before.

The first Class election of the year was that of the Sophomores and the above students were invested with the duties and responsibilities of executive administration.

Within a fortnight of being elected the executive presented the annual Sophomore Reception to Freshmen, and the function was highly successful. Due to a somewhat congested state of the social calendar at the time, however, the crowd was not unduly large, so that tables were placed about the hall, and a charming cabaret effect was created, which lent an air of distinctive charm to the occasion.

During the year Sophomore talent played a notable part in all the fields of student activity, and it can be confidently asserted that the following gallery of students which reads today as the Sophomore Class of '33 and '34 will some day read as an honor list in the "Who's who" column of the nation, if scholarship, vision and aggressive personal characteristics are to play a worthy part in our country's welfare.

As Class '37 we have set out to demonstrate that we can enter into the life of the University without the traditional initiation of former years. It is our hope to be able to continue in subsequent years to participate in extra-curricular activities to the same extent; to secure really creditable scholastic standings; to do our part in the athletic field; and as graduates, through service to our respective communities, to be a credit to the University.

The Freshman representation in the Year Book is the largest in history, as is the membership of the Class. A Freshman "Skit Night," held at the first of the year proved a popular innovation. At the time of the Inter Year plays, our members very creditably performed "The Man in the Bowler Hat." We were represented by six stalwarts on the Senior Rugby team, two stars on the Senior Hockey team, four members of the Basketball squad, and numerous others engaged in tennis, badminton and all branches of inter-faculty competition.

Not having experienced the initiation ceremonies we can make no comparison of that method with the one in force this year.

We do say that we have developed a fine class spirit that will remain with us till the time of our graduation.

SCHOLARSHIP AWARDS

Rhodes' Scholarship

The announcement of the awarding of the Rhodes' Scholarship for 1934 to Robert L. (Buzz) Fenerty was welcomed by everyone. Entering this University in 1928, he has distinguished himself in social, academic, and athletic life on the campus.

Buzz received his B.A. in 1931 and L.L.B. in 1933, making first class general standing. As an all round student and fine example of Alberta manhood, he should go far in his chosen field.

ROBERT L. FENERTY

I.O.D.E. Post-Graduate Scholarships

The I.O.D.E. Scholarship was founded by the Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire, as a part of the war memorial. Miss Helen Sorenson was given this award for 1934. This is Helen's third I.O.D.E. award. In 1926 she received the War Memorial Bursary and in 1928 the War Memorial Scholarship. Miss Sorenson obtained her B.A. from the University in 1929-30 and went on to merit her School of Education diploma the following year.

The Scholarship includes a trip overseas to Somerville College next September.

HELEN SORENSON

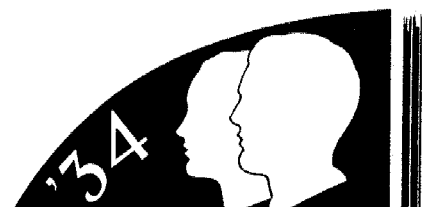

The Elizabeth Imrie Scholarship

The Imrie Scholarship embraces six weeks' attendance at the Zimmer School of International Affairs, and the assemblies of the League of Nations at Geneva. The object is to increase through the recipient, interest in the problems of achieving sound international relations.

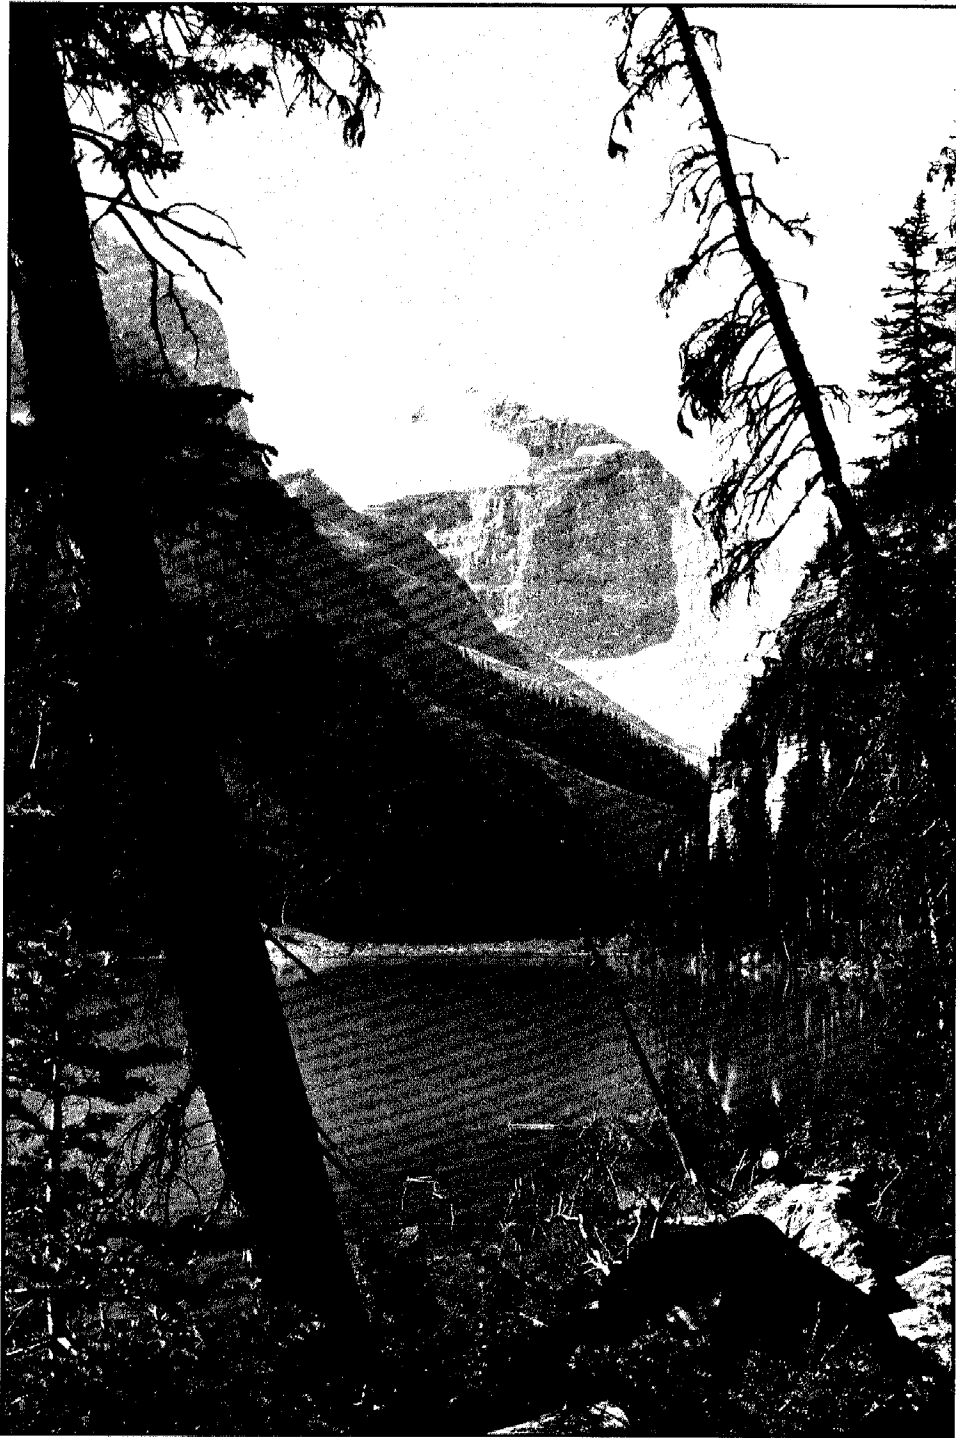

Art Bierwagen was the popular choice for award for 1933. Among his accomplishments are president of the Fresh Class '30-'31, and director of the '32-'33 Year Book. As an Imperial Debater in 1933, he has always taken a prominent part in that field. Above all, Art is a first class student.

The year 1933-34 marks the beginning of a new era in Student Government at the University of Alberta. Since the beginning of student activities on this campus the problem of organization and control of various club and individual activities has been a difficult one. This is the task of the Students' Council. Each year has brought with it new difficulties and each year has left behind new solutions and new attitudes towards student life and student endeavors. Each succeeding Council strives to bring the existing form of Student Government closer to the ideal.

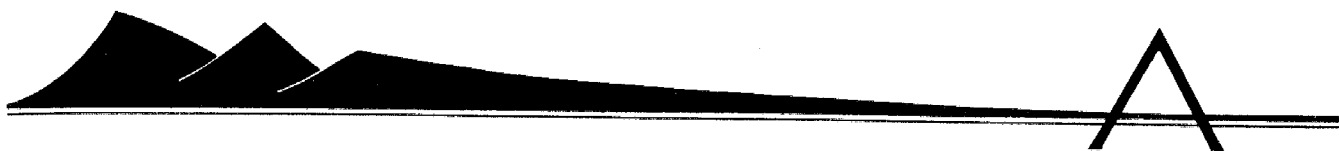

This year the Constitution Enforcement Committee has been established as an institution which, it is believed, will be free of the old evils of the Men's Disciplinary Committee (and before that the Students' Court) and at the same time carry with it the essential qualities of control sought by its instigators.

The financial worries of the Council during the past year have been frequent and great. Only by careful planning and tedious labor have the various organizations been supplied with the necessary funds to carry on and afford the students of the opportunities that have been placed before them.

It would not be sufficient to write a resume of the activities of Council without mentioning that this year the Skating and Hockey Rink has finally been paid for. The advantages accruing from the student use of this rink are obvious. The foresight and courage of those who built the rink and the steady effort to remove the debt must now be commended. It is to be hoped that in the future other student enterprises will be carried out with equal success.

In closing, the Council leaves this last hope--that the administrative efforts will prove lasting and deserving of the confidence displayed by the members of the Students' Union.

Another very successful year has been inscribed in Wauneita annals. A large and enthusiastic membership, and functions eagerly planned and carried through, were again ample proof of the Society's importance in the University Woman's affairs.

Wauneitas made their initial appearance in the first busy days of the new term in affairs planned to introduce Freshettes to University life.

The first formal function of the year was in the third week of October, when Wauneitas successfully entertained the men students.

Throughout the remainder of the term our Masquerade, Hut Night and formal Banquet, rounded out a full programme of Wauneita activities.

Wherever Wauneitas go they carry the golden feathers, emblem of gaiety and light-heartedness in the past, and high hopes for the future, and forever in their hearts the motto: "Payuck uche Kukeyow—Kukeyow uche Payuck."

The House Committee for 1933-34 has retained the two traditional functions of that body—namely disciplinary and social. Each passing year seems to lend to the first of these functions a more forbidding aspect, yet each spring brings to a close a year of successful student discipline. This year the abolition of initiation and all forms of hazing appeared as a possible complication; this year also the House Committee was given broader disciplinary powers over all events in residence, replacing the old Disciplinary Committee. The successful completion of the session in the face of unusual difficulties is a fine tribute to the quiet, tactful and thoroughly efficient administration of the House Committee.

The success of the year has been due in no small measure to the generous and sympathetic co-operation of Dr. MacEachran, Miss Dodd and her successor Mrs. MacDonald, to Mr. Jones and also to the students themselves. To all of these the House Committee wishes to extend its sincere thanks.

The aim of the Women's Disciplinary Committee is to maintain such standard of conduct among the women students as will reflect only credit on our University. It seeks to achieve this through informal and advisory measures.

The women who comprise this Committee are elected directly and indirectly by the women students. They represent the student body and give its decisions independent of any outside influence. The Committee appointed Margery MacKenzie to fill the vacancy created by Mary Macbeth this year.

During the past year the cordial co-operation on the part of the students has been greatly appreciated. This, of course, is an invaluable aid in carrying on the work of the Committee.

The year just passed has been marked by a change of Rectors. The new Rector, Brother Memorian, has brought with him many refreshing innovations which have contributed to make student life at the College even more enjoyable.

The Tuck Shop has continued to be the popular meeting place for the inmates of the College and other idle students on the Campus. A new lunch room for women has been added to accommodate the ever increasing number of the fair sex who gather here at noon.

The dining room and the auditorium have been the scene of many pleasant social functions given by the various university organizations. The Autumn Formal conducted by the students of the College was repeated with the same brilliant success.

The lot of the House Committee has been an easy one as attested by the fact that it has been a financial failure. We trust that this failure is success if St. Joseph's has approached nearer to the ideal of its founders as a home for Students on the Campus.

The two-towered castle, the oldest building on the Campus, is St. Stephen's—a graduate school in Theology, a University residence, and a home.

To the men who train here for the ministry there comes increasingly a sense of the great worth of the Principal and the Professors as Christian gentlemen and as scholars. We shall always be different because we have known them and studied under them.

To some three-score men each year this "castle" is our home. During most sessions every faculty and school of the University is represented. All enjoy the various social and athletic activities and the equally valuable incidental contacts that mean much to us now, and in giving each an appreciation of other professions, will probably mean more to us in later years.

As St. Stephen's closes her twenty-fourth year and some of us leave these halls for the last time, we are confident that she will always maintain her high standing in character and scholarship.

The 1933-34 session brought with it the beginning of a new era for the University Covered Rink. The efforts of the students of 1925-26 are finally rewarded—we have a rink at our disposal demanding only a nominal sum each year to cover operating expenses. At times it seemed impossible that the task could be accomplished, but we look back upon its attainment with ill-concealed pride and satisfaction.

And now we wonder where students went in the good old days for that ten minutes' exercise, that whole evening of skating or that rap at someone's shins.

The rink policies are drawn up by the Covered Rink Committee which is responsible to the Students' Union through the Council. These policies are carried out by the rink manager who is appointed by the Committee.

Until this year, although student managers have been in charge, the supervision and the responsibility for efficient management has rested with the University. Now, since payments have been completed, it is the duty of the Students' Union to provide for sound financial management as well as for entertainment in the form of skating and hockey.

EVERGREEN AND GOLD

HAROLD RILEY

To satisfy the varied tastes of a campus group is an impossible task. Illustration, typography, layout, all keyed to one style must jangle harshly on some unattuned observers. To more conservative souls, Volume XIV of Evergreen and Gold will epitomize all that is base in the word "radicalism." But discordant as some may consider the contents, the theme can find universal acceptance.

BOB SCOTT

Throughout the year fortune has been most kind. The Annual gathered to itself one of the most capable and enthusiastic staffs an editor could wish for. The business staff found a more difficult problem, and spent a busy year in its solution. The finest printer's libraries in the West were subject to research. The services of a sincere and intelligent artist became available. Connections were established with the editors of other university annuals. The publication date was advanced a full month, to meet the demands of the student body. Those delinquents who were somewhat tardy in handing in photographs may find that they are amongst the missing. We sincerely apologize; the only justification we may claim for such rashness is that this was indispensably necessary if the Annual was to be distributed before the end of March.

And so draws to a close another university year, and there appears another Evergreen and Gold. We hope it is something worthy of a campus and a province whose beauty lies in its rugged simplicity and harmony. The thought is Alberta: the medium is beauty: the verdict is yours!

It is an interesting experience to visit the Gateway on the day of publication. To the uninitiated, the office seems a veritable pandemonium. The telephone rings furiously, the typewriter clatters along in an erratic sort of fashion, scissors snip industriously, while glue pours freely over all and sundry. The room is invariably crowded with superfluous humanity, but gradually the stranger discerns an under-current of order in the apparent chaos. Endless sheets of copy are read and corrected, articles are conjured up to be headed, and finally even page proofs appear to be marked. The visitors will then, perhaps, begin to appreciate something of the work and time and thought that is necessitated by each issue of the Gateway.

Our editor has proved to be an almost inexhaustible fountain of originality, as the prom extra and other innovations testify. The editorials have been apropos of the matters of general student interest, without completely burying themselves in petty campus problems. The versatile Taurus, with the other several columnists, have provided food and substance for innumerable discussions. The feature editor was promoted at Christmas to a higher post, but his successor has ably maintained the uniform excellence of these pages. Our Co-Eds too, have won permanent columns, to which they have loyally contributed. The Sports and News departments have endeavored to present impartial yet interesting accounts of the different phases of undergraduate life, while Casserole has lavishly bestowed a dozen laughs each week. Various portions and features of the paper may still be far from perfect, but at least each department does co-operate to the full in presenting a regular issue of the Gateway, an issue that not only presents a faithful delineation of student activities, but one that at the same time provides a medium for the expression of student thought and opinion.

The Gateway has enjoyed a short but somewhat checkered past. In 1909-10 abortive attempts were made to start a college paper, but for financial reasons they were abandoned. The following autumn, however, a regular monthly Gateway was instituted. Mr. Ottewell, now our registrar, was the original editor-in-chief, and informs us that in those days the staff had to run up and down the streets scaring up ads before they knew whether or not there would be an issue. (Ed. Davidson remarks that times haven't changed a bit in the last twenty years.) But by 1915 we find the Gateway being published every week, and in 1920, every Monday, Wednesday and Saturday, together with a monthly literary supplement. Soon they returned to the regular Friday issue through—finances!

All of which brings us to the celebrated birth of twins, experienced by the Gateway in January of this year. For 1934, it was a rather courageous venture, but owing to the splendid co-operation given by the business and advertising departments, the experiment proved highly successful. For a month the Gateway appeared every Tuesday and Friday with sport and news that especially benefited by the bi-weekly appearance. Two staffs were organized, Doug McDermid publishing the extra paper. The innovation was popular with the students, and really made for a more efficient and more interesting Gateway.

So successful was the experiment this year that for 1934-35 the Council has authorized the publication of two issues a week for seventeen weeks and one issue a week for six or eight weeks or about forty issues in all.

His fine playing was sensational at Calgary.

McKenzie Leads Calgary to Second Victory Over Varsity

Close Game Ends With Altamaha Winning 9-0 Victory Over Varsity in Third Game of Series

Scoring seven of his teams nine points, Alex McKenzie, stellar backfielder and captain of Calgary Altamaha, led his team to victory over Varsity's Green and Gold contingent Saturday in the third game of the Alberta playdowns.

The game was of the ordinary kind, two backs and a kick, with neither club willing to open up and take a chance. McKenzie's touch came in the second quarter when, on a fine line lay, Williams took out the end man and McKenzie side stepped the secondary and went over 25 yards for a touchdown.

Scott, Morton, Rule and Moir were good performers for the Bears, with Rule being the chief threat as a player. However, in spite of the comparative evenness of the game, Varsity seemed to be fixed when a chance for a score presented itself. Morton's kick, however, went into the end zone, but the line did not give him the necessary protection, and he had to hurry them away.

The R. H. B. the Prime Minister of Canada, B. B. Bennett, opened the game. Mr. Bennett indicated that a dropkick could make an ideal start for any self-respecting rugby game. He remarked that the ball had broken in the second quarter since he and McKenzie King had played against one another. However, he finally got a kick away that he considered fairly satisfactory, and the play began.

In the first quarter play was confined in mid field throughout, with Calgary having a slight advantage in that they had three first downs, while Varsity had none. Calgary attempted one forward, which Pete Rule intercepted and carried back 20 yards.

At the start of the second period McKenzie kicked an angle, and Borgal was scored by Friel. After the Pete Rule broke close away, but the timekeeper blew the whistle before the play was completed for a Calgary offside.

Foul play marred the game at this stage, due to off-sides. Calgary made three times through the line to put McKenzie in position to gallop 25 yards for a try. Varsity's first forward was intercepted at end this period.

At the start of the second half, Reg. Moir went through for three yards, and Morton recovered his own kick for a forty-yard gain that put the ball inside Calgary's 25-yard line. Morton threw a forward to Zender, which the latter narrowly missed on the Calgary touch line. Calgary got the ball and kicked. Reg. Moir made 20 yards, and Harold Richards made five. Calgary got the ball on a fumble, and after a few plays, McKenzie kicked to a touch in goal.

Varsity started a great offensive in the fourth quarter, following a

Pertinent Observations on Politics and Economics in England Delights Large Gathering

Thursday night saw the opening meeting of a series of lectures and discussions sponsored by the Philosophical Society. The address was given by Dr. Alexander, and its subject was "Observations on the Politics and Economics of the England of Today."

Mr. Sonet held the chair, and introduced the speaker of the evening to the large and attentive crowd that filled the hall. The chairman welcomed the gathering that Dr. Alexander has a flair for politics and his views are not always orthodox. However, Dr. Sonet advised that it is the unorthodox people who contribute to progress, and it is to them that one owes all these monuments and tombstones erected in the wrong way. At this, Mr. Sonet smiled himself, and left the floor to the speaker of the evening, Dr. Alexander.

The noted socialist speaker, with a few remarks to the effect that he loved England too deeply and dearly to handle the subject in a purely detached manner, which so many affect, he loves England because it is a free country, a land where personal freedom is tolerated to the highest degree, and where freedom of speech and criticism is regarded as a right rather than as the essence of rudeness, or even a criminal offense.

English Self-Criticism
Contrary to public opinion, however, our learned professor, the true Englishman, is always criticizing himself, and his actions with a view to constructive betterment. And so get quite the wrong impression here when we listen to some of these Englishmen that think England can do no wrong and her every action is perfect. The more outspoken and criticizing a man's attitude is, quoted Dr. Alexander, "the more he approaches an Englishman."

The Doctor then proceeded "to step on people's toes," as he so aptly put it. His first remarks were addressed against the physical health of the English. He stated that normal weight, clear skin and a healthy body were so uncommon as to be abnormalities and he classified the population as C3.

Public School Scold
The next tirade was directed against the English public school system. His impressions of the schools were that they fostered a feeling of class consciousness and snobbishness. Public schools were created by accident, and at first were connected with the church. They were institutions where the wealthy could send their sons to keep them away from their hereditary companionship of the village yokels. As far as he could see, their purpose has changed little, and the people can at present ill afford the expense of them. Why they are English foreign policy is gradually changing now too, said the Professor. A few years ago England was directly friendly towards Germany and relations were a bit strained with France. Now the opposite is the case. The English cannot put up with Germany's stupidity in regard to personal freedom and race differentiation. However, England is not "all white" herself, especially if one considers the English trade embargo she has placed on Russian goods. England can ill afford to be particular about her customers.

Dr. Alexander also mentioned that England's great difficulty in ruling imperially is that she acts and then

The Minister Bennett Host to Rugby Teams and Officials at Palliser Hotel

While in Calgary, the Varsity and Altamaha rugby teams and rugby officials were royally entertained at a banquet in the Palliser Hotel by Prime Minister Bennett.

During the afternoon the Premier displayed a great interest in the national fall football, and asked many questions about the game. He mentioned the fact that the first time he and McKenzie King met was on a rugby field (one who asked who Scott).

During the previous to the game he had interviewed your reporter (replied, wishing to choose his own topics of conversation in future when Calgary reporters are concerned).

At the close of the game, the Minister and his party were invited to the dressing room of the Varsity team, where they were met by the players and officials.

The Minister then spoke of the value of training, and emphasized the fact that discipline could not be mixed with the game. He said that he was very much interested in the game, and that he was very much interested in the game.

That this kind gesture was fully appreciated was illustrated by the close attention that everyone paid to the Minister's remarks. The Minister, Mr. Bennett, and the hearty applause given both on his arrival and departure.

The Literary Society has this year functioned under new organization. Comprised of a president, secretary, and the presidents of the Dramatic, Debating and Philharmonic Societies, it has only two seats on the council in place of the former three. By thus reducing the council representatives it was hoped to centralize literary activities and to shift more of their direct control to the literary executive itself. We can not vouch for the success of the experiment. As a rehearsal-grounds for the heated polemics which ultimately blazed forth full-flowered in the council meetings, the Literary Society has executed its functions admirably. It has striven with all the strength of a declining royalty to become a power. It has attempted to veto the Dramatic Society on several famous occasions and all to no avail. Histrionic talent has had many displays. English lads have paced the floor—Dramat. shall take the spring play to Calgary—Dramat. shall not take the spring play to Calgary, ad infinitum. Council has burned midnight oil trying to decide the prerogatives of the mother society and its offspring. It has at least been interesting. We may have been “cardboard figures” but cardboard with a red question mark and a challenge which has dragged several skeletons out of the Dramatic cupboard.

The season of 1933-1934 has witnessed a considerable increase in the activities of the Dramatic Society. First was the "Dramat Night." Soon after registration plans were under way for an evening of light and humorous entertainment in the shape of sketches and short plays. The idea was to use, in the casting, new students who had not previously been with us; senior students were to be chosen as producers, and all other work was to be done by students. Parker Kent not only directed his skit but also wrote it. Larry Davis, Alan Macdonald and Lewis Thomas were responsible for the rest, and a capable make-up man was found in Wally Beaumont, a Freshman.

The two reading groups were continued this year by Ken. Ives, Lewis Thomas, and their assistants; a third was added under Alan Macdonald's supervision.

The remaining activity is the entry into the Provincial Dramatic Festival with "Derelict," a play by a resident of Calgary.

This year, then, the Dramatic Society has encouraged Freshmen in the Dramat Night; has interested more students through its reading groups; has used two plays written in the province, namely: "Derelict" and the Sophomore play by Parker Kent; and has accomplished its customary work as well.

THE JUNIOR PLAY

MURRAY BELL

To the Junior Class this year goes the honor of presenting the most popular play in the Fourteenth Annual Inter-year Play Competition, "The Clod." In her portrayal of the title role Miss Margery Mackenzie was voted the best actress of the evening.

The story, in brief, concerns a northern refugee from the civil war who hides himself in the Trask farmhouse. When Mary Trask discovers him—her only desire is to get him away from the house and to avoid the pursuing Southern Sergeant's wrath.

The climax comes when Mary Trask stirred by the constant abuse and epithets of the sergeant, picks up a shotgun and kills him.

The refugee thanks her and leaves but—Mary Trask can only think of her broken cup. All the fire is gone when she says: "I guess I'll have to drink out of the tin cup now."

THE SENIOR PLAY

Miles Molleson's "Black 'Ell," the Senior class offering to the Inter-Year Play competition, is a realistic piece of anti-war propaganda. It tells the story of a young lieutenant who returns from the front on leave. He has been decorated for gallantry and his family and friends, full of sickening sentimentality and false notions of patriotism, are prepared to give him a rousing welcome. But, the young man, unnerved by his harrowing experiences in the trenches, compels them to listen to his bitter denunciation of war, and definitely refuses to go back to service in the trenches.

Eric Johnson took the honors with both his interpretation of the young lieutenant and his capable direction.

"THE FINISHING TOUCH"

The play entitled "The Finishing Touch" was Elizabethan in setting and language, the latter being in blank verse, while the subject matter was modern in conception. Humorous and entertaining, without for a moment trespassing on the burlesque, this play was enthusiastically received and won a commendable share of the popular vote. The play was written and directed by Parker Kent, the versatile president of the Sophomore class.

THE FRESHMAN PLAY

The Freshman class contribution was "The Man in the Bowler Hat," by A. A. Milne. The play by this well known and popular writer is a smooth and polished bit of nonsense; the character development is simple, but very good. The two leading characters—very ordinary, rather timid people—were portrayed by Rose Marie Boileau and Jack Raymond.

Bob Borden, Leonard Harper, Gert-rude Ellere and Mitchell Brecher had supporting roles. T. W. E. Henry took the part of The Man in the Bowler Hat, whose presence permeated the whole play and brought it to an amazing climax.

I wish Black 'Ell to them what killed him.
In all the world there's nothing I'd like better than--

THE SPRING PLAY

BERT CAIRNS
DIRECTOR OF SPRING PLAY

"She stood in tears

AMID THE ALIEN CORN."

Though Sidney Howard went to Keats for the title of his play, "Alien Corn," he does not tell the story of Ruth, nor does his Elsa till the good earth. It is by exiling two Viennese musicians in a small college community a few hours west of Chicago that he finds material whereby he may contrast native and foreign manners, morals, and aspirations.

Ottokar Brandt (Bert Ramelson) was a noted concert violinist until an accident deprived him of the use of his left arm. His wife, now dead, was a famous Wagnerian soprano. Their daughter, Elsa (Sara Yampolsky), has inherited a musical talent, the extent of which is yet to be proved. Circumstances strand the father and daughter in this midwest town where the Conway College for Women dominates the atmosphere and activities of the community life. Brandt has failed as a teacher, his irascible nature and his impatience with mediocrity having prevented him from indulging in the flattery so necessary to retain dull, ungifted, pupils, the lot of all instructors. Thus upon the youthful Elsa has fallen the burden of supporting herself and her father by teaching the piano at Conway College, but always longing for Vienna—home for her father, freedom for herself.

The play opens with the establishing of the Brandts and their one lodger, Julian Entwistle (Eric Johnson), a neurotic young professor, in their new house on the college campus. To Elsa the place is but a further link in the fetters that bind her ambition. To her father it is another prison which holds him in exile. To Julian, it is the haven where his love for Elsa will be realized. Mrs. Skeats (Gwen Pharis) the wife of the pompous professor (Clif Elson) who disseminates culture via the radio, class-room, and women's clubs, is helping the Brandts to settle in their new home.

At the arrival of Harry Conway (David Ross), son of the founder of the local college, and husband of Muriel (Magdalena Polley) the musically pretentious social leader of the town, there surges a feeling of resentment in Elsa against all he represents. Conway, who dislikes music and artists, is embarrassed in her presence, but her forthright manner attracts him.

Into this group comes Phipps (Alan MacDonald), editor of the Gazette, a cynical, plain spoken, veteran of the press, who has had his dreams and lost them. He recognizes in Elsa the same creative instinct that was his when he was young, and though music is not his language, her aspirations awaken echoes of his own surrendered dreams. Seeing her struggling against the web that "security" is drawing about her, he refuses to let her get side-tracked.

Howard has no contempt for the small town, or the inhabitants of it. If Conway is a Babbit, as Julian calls him, Stockton (Lewis Thomas) and Watkins (Al East) both defend Babbity for its virility. When Howard exposes Professor Skeats, the ostentatious, vain, and magniloquent charlatan, he is laying bare not a village type, but a national figure. When he draws forth the friendliness of Elsa's neighbors, it is not with a sneer, but with recognition of an inherent quality in the American people. When, through Phipps, the editor, he punctures the hokum of native thought and action, he is bitter, for he has no patience with pretence.

"DERELICT"

The University Dramatic Society made a fortunate choice for its first venture in the Alberta Dramatic Festival. "Derelict," a one-act play by Mr. E. J. Thorlakson of Calgary, was awarded first place over seven other entries (by the adjudicator, Mr. Rupert Harvey of London), and thus won the privilege of representing the province in the Dominion Festival at Ottawa.

No better vehicle could have been chosen to express the splendid talents of Eric Johnson, who played the father and won the unqualified praise of the adjudicator. Norah Young, as the mother, gave a strong, sympathetic performance. Larry Davis, the director, who also played the son, and June Allsopp as his fiancée, were complimented for their naturalness and charm.

In its first venture in this field the University has well acquitted itself, and we wish the cast the best of luck should they be able to represent the University at Ottawa.

Once again the members of the Philharmonic Society look back upon a year full of enjoyment and success, largely due to Mrs. J. B. Carmichael, capable director of the chorus and orchestra, who gave generously of both time and energy.

Following the procedure of former years, the orchestra supplied the musical entertainment for the major productions of the Dramatic Society, the Inter-year Plays and the Spring Play.

But the main efforts of the Society during the past year were directed toward staging the comic operetta "Joan of the Nancy Lee," presenting the old theme of love in an unusual and intriguing fashion. The scenery, designed by S. Landymore was really perfect. The combined talents of a chorus of fifty voices and an orchestra of thirty players presented, under the competent guidance of Mrs. Carmichael and Mr. T. W. Dalkin, a highly gratifying performance. The opera was staged under the distinguished patronage of His Honor Lieutenant Governor Walsh, President Wallace and Dr. J. M. MacEachran.

The Philharmonic Executive are to be congratulated upon their choice of an opera of very fine quality as regards both dialogue and music.

With such achievements behind it, the Philharmonic Society will, it is hoped, maintain its customary high standard of performance, serving the student body to the very best of its ability.

The stage setting of Joan of the Nancy Lee, with orchestra in the foreground.

JOAN OF THE NANCY LEE

The presentation this session of "Joan of the Nancy Lee" has been acclaimed by many competent critics as the most successful musical venture on the campus of recent years. The clever setting, on board the "Nancy Lee"; the bridesmaids' gowns of 1800; the pirate garbs and flashing swords, the atmosphere of excitement created both by the plot and the strains of the orchestra; all blended to make the scene of this comic operetta one long to be remembered.

Headed by a very clever cast of principals the Men's and Ladies' choruses showed exceptional qualities of group singing and stage performance. A great deal of credit is due to Mrs. J. B. Carmichael and Mr. T. W. Dalkin for their work as the musical and dramatic directors of the operetta. The experience and ability of these two directors has once again proved invaluable to a University production.

That the show was well received by an enthusiastic audience on its first performance was evidenced by a capacity house on the second night. The Philharmonic Society has set a standard of performance which, it is to be hoped, can be maintained in the future.

Dorinda and Florinda are taught their dancing lessons by Signor Doremi. The partners are Jerry and Barnaby. . . . Lady Joan would divide the contents of the treasure chest, while Captain Dick refuses to allow it to be opened, and Dona Eustacia claims it all as hers.

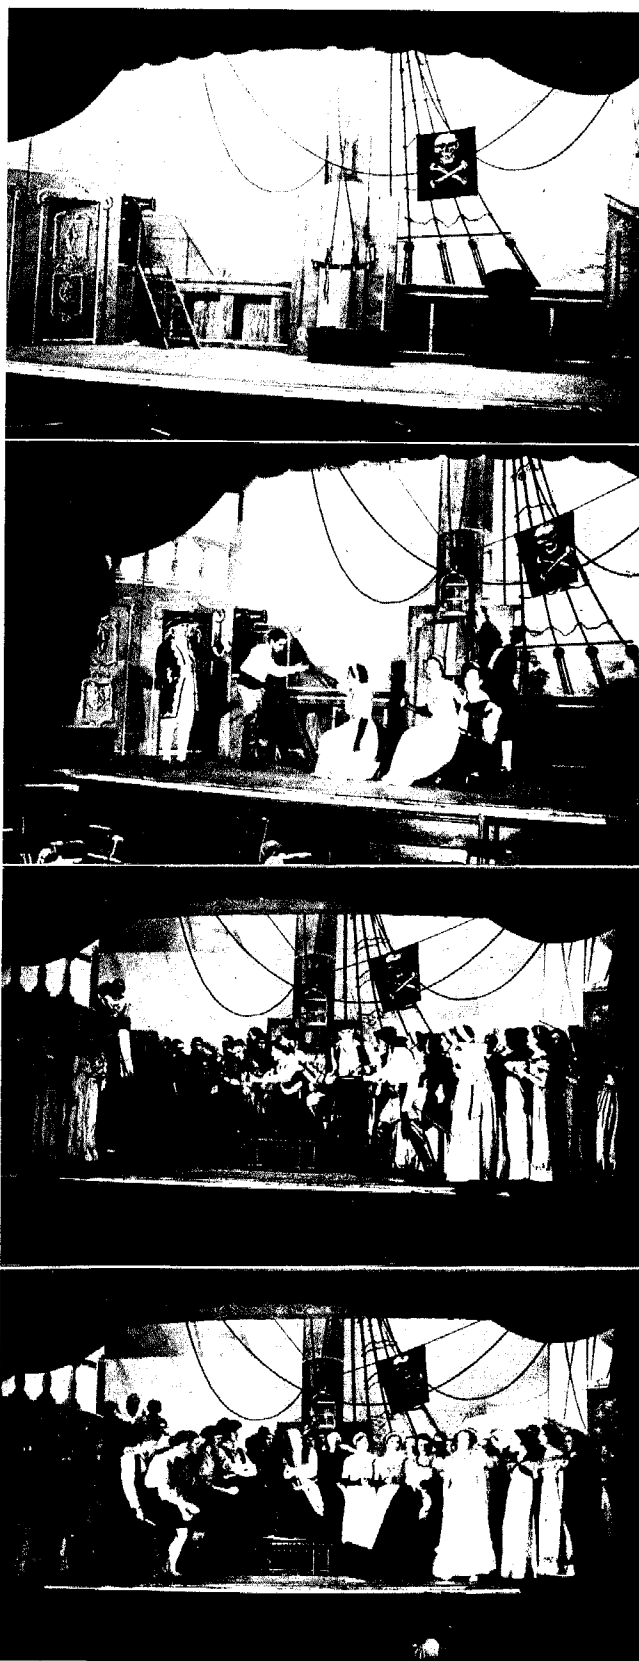

THE STORY OF THE OPERA

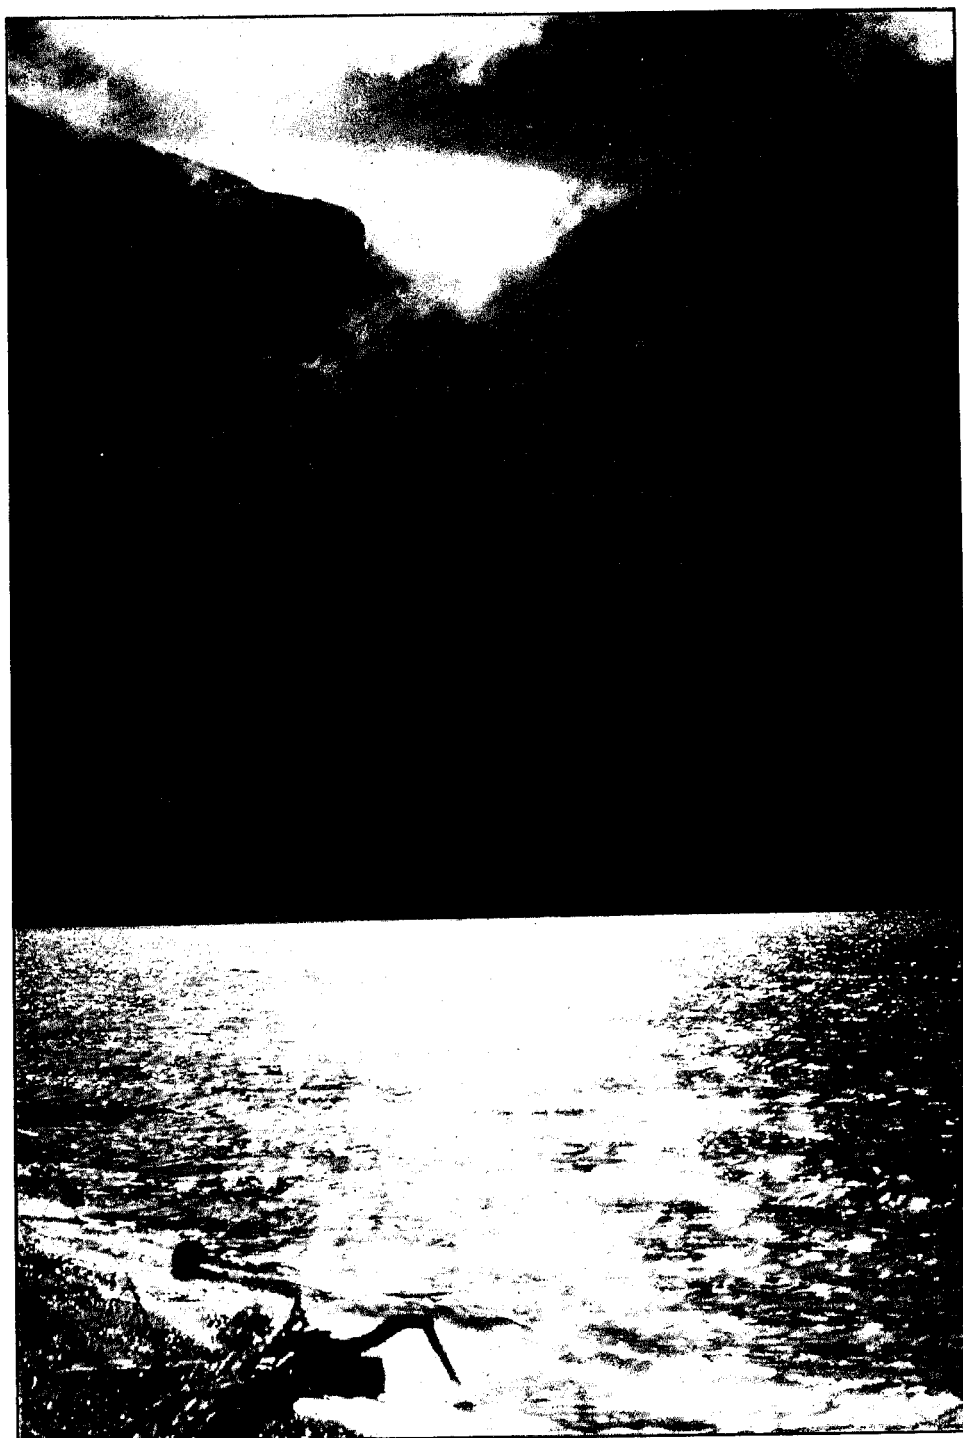

Sir Richard Camden, an English gentleman, has been exiled from England for political reasons, through the treachery of his cousin, Lord Egbert Mortimer. Before taking his leave, Sir Richard finds that his sweetheart, Lady Joanna Leyton, has jilted him in favor of Lord Egbert, who comes into possession of the Camden lands and wealth. Sir Richard becomes a pirate, and joins with him a band of young English gentlemen who, too, have been jilted by their sweethearts. The pirates man the ship Nancy Lee, and choose as their leader Sir Richard, who becomes "Captain Dick" of the pirate barge. The Nancy Lee is sailing off the coast of England when her crew attacks and captures a ship which is carrying back from France Lady Joanna and her bridesmaids, who have been to Paris to buy gowns for Lady Joanna's approaching wedding.

The opera concerns itself with the way in which Lady Joanna prevents a mutiny of the crew, and makes herself captain of the ship, deposing her former lover. In the process of the plot, Joanna and Richard become reconciled, and the pirates, yielding to the charm of the maidens aboard ship, foreswear their oath to hate women and become suitors for the hands of their captives.

The Deck of the "Nancy Lee" as it appeared off the coast of England in 1800 . . . Lessons under the black flag . . . Lady Joanna turns the cannon on the crew and prevents Bloody Bill's attempt to raise mutiny . . . Captain Dick begs for mercy at the feet of Lady Joanna, while the crew wait for their share of the treasure chest.

Each succeeding year sees a further growth of interest in this important student activity. The Open Forum, which is the standard by which student interest in debating can be gaged, has enjoyed great popularity during the past term. Nor has there been evident any tendency toward undue reticence on the part of the enthusiastic students who formed the excellent attendance.

The policy of expansion of the Provincial Debates provided a new opportunity for students to represent their university in various towns throughout Alberta. That this opportunity was eagerly seized upon is attested by the fact that it was necessary to devote two meetings of the Open Forum to the hearing of applicants.

Through the efforts of the N.F.C.U.S. the Debating Society presented two important innovations during the past term: an all French team from Montreal, and an all American team from Bates College.

The term has not been distinguished by a large number of victories, but our defeats were honorable, and we did achieve one important victory in the retention of the McGoun Cup for the second successive year. May it continue to grace our rostrum for years to come.

Un evenement d'une grande importance se produisit cette annee et apporta une note nouvelle dans la vie sociale de l'universite. The Bates College Team

Winning by a narrow margin, the debating team from Bates College, Lewiston, Maine, travelling under the auspices of the N.F.C. U.S. met and defeated our strongest team on the evening of January 31st in Convocation Hall. President Wallace, as chairman, observed that this was the first United States team to debate in Edmonton, and expressed the hope that further work along these lines would be done to foster Inter-University friendship between the two countries.

The judges decision went by a vote of two to one to the visitors, but a popular ballot taken, gave the debate to Alberta by a slight margin.

Mark McClung, student in Philosophy, and Harold Riley, Law student, composed the Alberta team, while Frank Murray and Theodore Seaman, Arts and Economics students respectively at Bates College, which is considered the most outstanding centre of collegiate debating in the United States and which offers special training in that field, proved themselves to be speakers of exceptional ability. Any advantage they might have had, it seems fair to state, probably was due to that cultivation which scientific coaching must undoubtedly afford.

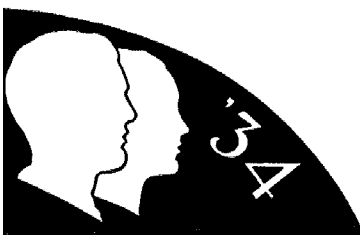

The subject matter of the debate on a proposition deprecating the spirit of Economic Nationalism, was skillfully handled, and the argument kept close to the point at all times. It was clearly touch and go, as far as victory was concerned, and from the point of view of the audience, the evening proved uncommonly informative and entertaining.

INTER-VARSITY DEBATES

At Home

Success! For the second consecutive year the McGoun Cup, time hallowed and much coveted symbol of forensic supremacy in the West rests safely in the land of Green and Gold. Wrested last season from Saskatchewan, we hope it has at last found its native soil and Alberta her stride in the van of western debating.

PARKER KENT

EDWARD McCORMICK

To Edward McCormick and Parker Kent go the laurels for upholding at home the timely resolution that "The Economic Salvation of Canada Lies in the Socialization of her Major Industries and Finance" against a Manitoba team thirsting for revenge because of our last year's triumph at Winnipeg. Ed, one of those responsible for that victory and an experienced campaigner, sustained his reputation for Celtic wit and facile argument. Though celebrating his maiden voyage in the Inter-Varsity sea, Parker distinguished himself for the cogency and wealth of his material, and the climatic scintillation of his rebuttal.

Carrying the attack into the enemy's territory Ralph Collins and William Epstein at Saskatoon achieved the signal honor of being the only team in the four provinces to overwhelm the Socialists' appeal and defeat the resolution. In this their initial appearance in the McGoun Cup debating, they proved an admirably harmonious team. Ralph's eloquence and Bill's trip-hammer clarity combined to help keep the trophy in Alberta. Long may it remain.

The Canadian Radio Commission began its series of Inter-University Radio Debates on January 23rd with Alberta and B.C. debating the question: "Resolved, That an international agreement to boycott an aggressor nation would be an effective means of preserving peace." Max Crosbie and Paul Campbell presented their case very convincingly, but the judges in Saskatoon decided in favor of the U.B.C. team.

On February 6th, Alberta was again represented in the Radio debates when Cecil Collier and Albert Duncan met a team from the University of Saskatchewan. The question was: "Resolved, That an international agreement to restrict the export of key minerals would be more effective in preserving peace than a pacifist public opinion." The judges in Winnipeg awarded a close decision to the Alberta team.

The Agricultural Club since its inception has enjoyed many successful years, and with the class of the 1933-1934 term we find history repeating itself.

Club activities were arranged with the object of furthering both the intellectual and social interests of its members. True "Aggie" spirit and the usual good fellowship prevailed at the annual smoker and several well-attended parties. The "Ag" banquet, considered one of the major functions of the club, was held in the Corona Hotel and proved an unprecedented success.

We were fortunate in procuring several very able speakers for our 4:30 meetings. These talks in addition to those given in the Discussion Group, were a welcome source of diversion and of information on many topics of current interest.

Without doubt, we have had a profitable year and venture to predict many more of them in the future.

The depression is over! Not only has this year seen the club membership doubled but our graduating class increased sevenfold—which gave Dr. Bulyea his third opportunity to speak on the perfect number—seven.

Each month has witnessed an outstanding event of the year—a Dent Club meeting—with EATS—student speakers—and sufficient professional topics to add to the year's profits. Two theories have been advanced to account for a perfect attendance at all meetings: one to avoid being selected as next month's speaker; the other to see who could eat the most.

We are a unique faculty—not of the unus equus type. We are totally lacking in the feminine touch—never has a woman crashed our gates and then we have Amby, whose orations on subjects, popular with himself (with Eddie as a respectful audience), have been the main feature of noon hour in the Med Building all term. Christmas holidays proved too much for our Uncle Bert—he joined the ranks of the “worsers-halves.” This year's contribution to the profession have been: Olsen's “Fur-lined”—dentures, and Moffatt's “Pin-head” inlays.

Those of us who are leaving do so with a feeling of regret, and carry with us many pleasant memories of days spent in the clinic and lab, to maintain the high standard our school has set for us.

A little known Greek legend tells of a group of Philosophers, followers of Pandemonium, who taught his students in the art of dielectic and trained them to carry on prolonged and purposeless arguments from the tops of mountains so as to outdo their opponents by sheer lung power. This sect became so unpopular with their fellows for their blasting rhetoric that they were banished to a small isle, where they spent the remainder of their time in drowning the roar of the sea in the crags.

For centuries various groups have followed the example of the Pandemoniums but not until the formation of the Law Club has the cause been seriously and conscientiously revived. There under the leadership of Ememacintros, Pandemonium has been re-born, and the Law Club is sweeping onward to new and louder triumphs. Among the most outspoken of the students we find Taurus and Epstinios and the seers of the age predict that they will compel the attention of multitudes. Nor is the voice of Xanthippe silent amongst the ceaseless babble, for asphixia and anemia have added the last word to many a vociferous controversy.

No man can prophesy the future of this strange group, but rumor has it that the government has already reserved them an island in the Sea of Contention.

Class '39—a group of 18 would-be “doctors” starting out on what, at present, seems to be a momentous task, and just beginning to wonder what it’s all about. Our only object in life is to evade that certain something which seems to have enveloped every upper class Medical Student and not only rendered him uncouth and immoral but also labelled him as undesirable. We note with pride our 46 brothers and one sister in second year, and point with distinction to the many prominent in athletics and student affairs in each successive year. We gaze on busy hands engaged in third, fourth and fifth years and wonder that the romance of medicine could continue with such unabated zeal. And then we are introduced to a rather elderly student; he has a distinct medical air.

He is an interne—about to graduate. He tells us of a happy and vicarious University life—of snake dances and the tradition of Med right, since abolished. He is gone, but in the distant future when the Med Banquet is held in the basement of the Methodist Church and the boys get addled on lemonade: he will be called to wax eloquent on “the good old days.”

Under the able guidance of Jack Lewis as President, the Commerce Club has enjoyed a season of successful accomplishments and happy associations. Meetings have been well attended and have combined the constructive angle with the social to the satisfaction of everyone.

In addition to the regular monthly meetings according to Charter, the Club has held daily Director's Meetings in the Tuck Shop. A dance in Convocation Hall, a Sleighing Party and a Banquet were very enjoyable and successful occasions and it is hoped that these will become annual Club functions.

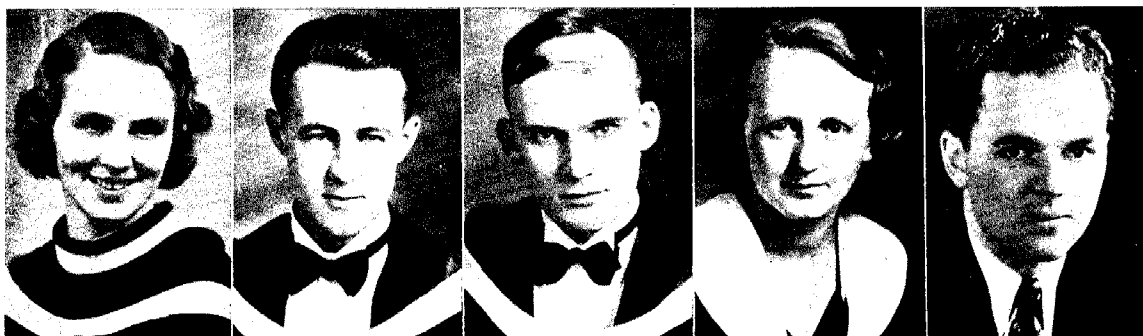

The financial condition of the Club is sound according to Secretary-Treasurer Barnes who took a few minutes from his studies and meditations to explain the situation in great detail. The complicated accounting methods employed by Mr. Barnes are a source of amazement and interest to all Club members.

An inventory of the Club's membership shows:

Finished goods (Graduating members)	13
Material in process (Juniors)	13
Raw material (Freshmen)	12
Total	38

It cannot be other than evident to all and to students in the School of Commerce in particular that, "Commerce," as a course is coming into its own, especially in these times when economic questions are so much to the fore.

To our graduates and graduands we extend our heartiest wishes for a brilliant and successful career in their chosen business spheres.

As in previous years, the annual roll call discloses that many must depart—those whose days of apprenticeship are completed—for duty calls them to other fields wherein their talent will be utilized in the service of mankind. But others join the ranks, embryo homemakers, desirous of becoming versed in the science of dietetics.

Despite the constant changing of its membership, the Household Economics faculty continues to be known for the ability of its representatives in extra curricular activities. Who is vice-president of the Students' Union and chairman of the Women's Disciplinary Committee?—Bessie Clark; who assists Muriel Massie (another House Eccer) with the direction of the Wauneita Society?—Ruth Graham, Marianne Pearson, and Margaret Clayton; whose duty is it to enforce the well known Pembina "C.B."?—Pat Brown's and Flora Williams'. The Senior Class Executive too has its share of our students—Molly Buchanan and Jean Irving; and last, but not least, are not Bea Gillespie and Ev Barnett two of the outstanding athletes on the campus? Not to be overlooked is the exemplification of female pulchritude which speaks for itself.

To review briefly the activities of the Household Economics Club for the year 1933-1934, might we not mention the monthly meetings, the annual banquet in Athabasca Lounge, the delightful teas and the Club's first excursion into the field of major social functions—the Undergrad.

So this annal concludes with a fond farewell to those departing, a warm welcome to the new arrivals, and an expression of sincere gratitude to Miss Patrick and Miss Duggan and to the members of the Household Economics Club Executive for their generous and enthusiastic co-operation throughout the term.

The striking paradox in Secondary Education up to the present time has been that teachers with Grade Twelve, and in some cases with even a Grade Eleven education, and Normal School training have been permitted to instruct Grade Eleven and Twelve classes.

The purpose of the School of Education is to provide qualified teachers for our Secondary Schools by giving the necessary professional training to University graduates who intend entering the teaching profession.

It is particularly regrettable from both the standpoint of Secondary Education, and of the teaching profession that teaching is often used as a "stepping stone" to some other field; that interlopers whose interests lie in some other work are free to enter the profession as a temporary shelter from unemployment, and that it so often serves as a last refuge for the "unfits" who have failed to make good in other professions. Such men who have not their interest or heart in this work cannot be expected to do justice to the profession, or to be factors in the movement for a more respected and more efficient profession. But this condition is certain to prevail as long as Public School standards; that is, Normal School training is made the only compulsory requirement for Secondary School instructors.

During the present year the School of Education Society was organized on a permanent basis, and it aims through an Alumni Association to devote its efforts toward the betterment of Secondary Education, and of the Teaching profession, looking forward to the time when School of Education Certification will be made compulsory for all Secondary Teachers in this province.

The Pharmacy Club of 1933-1934 was the biggest and best that has ever graced these Halls of Learning. Under the leadership of Colonel Dunn it has thoroughly enjoyed, and greatly profited by the year's activities.

The purpose of the Club is to allow its members to meet and listen to authorities on various outside topics of interest to the rising Pharmacists; and to form a basis for social entertainment and good fellowship.

In the fall the Club held an informal dance at St. Joseph's College; our able President, Jack Agnew, guiding affairs to a huge success. In February we dined and danced in state at the Macdonald Hotel. Wine, women, and song!

The Pharmacy Club was no back number in sports either. Ralph Maybank, Joe Ruzicka and Harry Ferguson carried the colors in the Varsity Senior Hockey Team. Other members played on the Inter-Faculty Hockey and Basketball Teams. George McFadzean claimed the honor of Varsity Singles Tennis Champion.

To these twenty promising young apothecaries setting out in life, armed with intelligence, ambition, and the British Pharmacopoeia, we wish health, wealth and happiness. May a census taken ten years from now find them all owning their own thriving establishments, both domestic and economic.

It may have been the summer of absolute rest that caused the U. of A. Engineers to return in the fall of 1933 with unprecedented energy and ambition. At any rate, these characteristics were manifest in the increased activity of the E.S.S.

As a result of an organized drive early in the fall, membership jumped fifty per cent over last year, and the assurance of a comfortable financial position promoted the idea of an experimental smoker.

The notorious Engineers' Banquet after a few years spent in aimless wandering was reinstated in its traditional home at the Macdonald Hotel. This, together with an excellent program of skits and music, and certain novel features in the menu itself, were responsible for a very enjoyable evening.

The bi-monthly meetings with their inevitable tea and cake were well attended, and talks by outside speakers were partly supplemented by a number of fine papers by our students.

Le succes du Cercle Francais va toujours grandissant. Les seances de la session 1933-1934 ont presente un attrait nouveau avec leurs doubles programmes.

Dans chacune des seances la premiere partie du programme etait offerte par les etudiants de l'Universite, la seconde partie par des eleves de langue francaise appartenant aux etablissements prives de la ville d'Edmonton.

Les programmes des etudiants de l'Universite furent des debats, des conferences, des charades, des recitals de musique. Ces programmes, prepares avec soin, montrerent l'interet que prennent les etudiants a l'etude du francais.

Les programmes des jeunes-gens et des jeunes-filles de langue francaise furent offerts par le College des Jesuites, le Juniorat Saint Jean, le College des Franciscains et le Couvent de l'Assomption. Les eleves de ces diverses institutions donnerent des comedies, des recitations, des saynetes comiques, des chants de diverses natures. Leur participation aux seances du Cercle Francais a cree un nouvel attrait, et a ete pour les etudiants de l'Universite une source de plaisir et de profit; il n'est, en effet, d'autre moyen d'apprendre une langue que d'entendre la parler ceux qui savent la parler.

In the third year of its existence, the Political Science Club has rapidly developed into an important branch of the Literary Society. The name of the club is probably a misnomer in that the sole topic of discussion is politics—provincial, national, and international.

The purpose of this club—the only political organization on the campus—is to stimulate thought and discussion on all matters of public interest. It has been felt that the best way to encourage a disinterested study of political affairs is to secure speakers of all political parties. To this end leaders in the various parties in the province are invited to speak on the aims of their parties in both the provincial and federal fields. Eminent visitors have also lectured on world movements of the moment.

Essentially a club of controversy, discussions often become acrimonious as all divergent elements present their views, which are inevitably both lauded and ridiculed by club members. The speakers chosen this year have covered such fields as Hitlerism, Communism and the League of Nations and have ranged from the radical to the conservative. To point to any one lecture as better than another would be obviously unfair but it is certain that the meeting which caused the most furore was that on Hitlerism.

It is felt that this organization—showing, as it does, all sides of provincial, national, and international questions—has given and is bound to give the student now and in the future a clearer perspective and better grasp of public affairs.

As the 1933-34 Year Book goes to press, the University Philosophical Society approaches the end of its twenty-third year: under the able and energetic presidency of Dr. Sonet, the Society has had one of the best years it has ever known. Dr. Sonet decided to limit the program of the Society to six evening lectures, and very happily decreed that each should be followed by a period of open discussion. Both lecturers and subjects were carefully selected, so that the matters brought under review should lie well within the field of general interest. The lively discussions that followed the lectures amply justified this policy: the active participation of the students in the meetings helped, as nothing else could, to make the gatherings a success.

The large enrolment of members (six hundred, of whom three hundred were students) testifies to the interest aroused by the lectures, as well as by the liveliness of the discussion, and to the executive and to the lecturers the very warm thanks of the Society are due.

The Society ends its year with the surprising surplus of three hundred dollars. Out of this surplus, the Executive Committee proposes to squeeze out more thought, by offering a prize of one hundred dollars for the best essay by a student on some subject of a philosophical nature, and further smaller prizes may be offered in Departments.

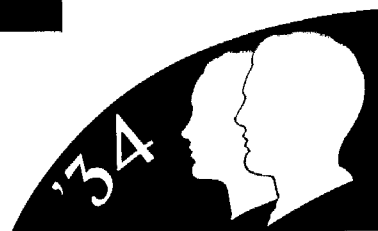

It is very pleasing to record the brilliant success of the Society this year: to the Executive Committee, to the lecturers, and to all who contributed to the discussion hearty thanks and congratulations are due.

The Mining and Geological Society is one of the oldest on the campus, and has this year been one of the most popular, membership being the largest in the history of the organization.

During the year some very fine papers have been presented on such topics as: "Prospecting in Rhodesia," "McMurray Tar Sands," "The Work of D. B. Dowling," etc.

The Society has this year suggested that in coming years one meeting be devoted to the study of the work of the late Dr. D. B. Dowling, the meeting to be as a memorial to this pioneer geologist of the West.

THE OSLER CLUB

The Osler Club is organized within the final year of medicine for the purpose of discussing topics of interest in relation to our course. A great variety of subjects has been presented during the term. Some of the topics have been selected cases which our members have been associated with during their summer internships. Others have been subjects we meet daily in our hospital clinics and lectures. Each topic is selected and presented by a member and subsequently a general discussion takes place. The Osler Club was first organized a number of years ago at the instigation of Dr. J. J. Ower, Professor of Pathology, and has carried on under his guidance.

Occasionally the club has been able to arrange afternoon tea for its members when the secretary is in funds. The club meets bi-monthly usually at the University hospital following lectures. The attendance at meetings has been quite good and a successful season has been concluded.

The Daleth Ayin Beth Club, commonly known as the Economics Club, had its inception in January, 1930, when a number of undergraduates interested in Political Economy decided to form a discussion group. Its membership was limited to fifteen male students and the members of the Department of Political Economy in order to facilitate free discussion and expression of opinion. Several of the original graduates have pursued their studies further and taken the Doctor of Philosophy in Economics.

It is the custom of the Club to hold one meeting each month, at each of which a paper is delivered by one of the members on an Economic or kindred subject. In the absence of any "class room" atmosphere discussion waxes hot, from the ultra-conservative to the ultra-radical, from the local to the international aspects.

Under the distinguished patronage of his Satanic Majesty, guests of the Junior Class spent a gay evening in an atmosphere of spirits, devils, and underground grottos. An awe-inspiring Mephistopheles, with powerful wings unfolded, and muscular arms outstretched leered at the gay crowd from above the orchestra. Weird lighting added to the mysterious murkiness of the atmosphere. An evening spent in the underworld—one of the most distinctive Proms in years!

House dances, a tradition, conquering depression even in the hearts of the most Scotch Romeos, are held on Saturday evenings that do not conflict with other major Varsity functions. The season 1933-34 marks the upturn, we believe in University sport. This year's outlook shows a decided improvement over the last three somewhat unproductive years.

Inter-Varsity competition was engaged in again. The Boxing and Wrestling Club staged a successful tournament; Tennis, Track, Basketball, Swimming and Badminton and Inter-faculty sports in every case have had excellent seasons. Although in no department has there been an exceptionally strong team, still certainly no weak teams have been produced.

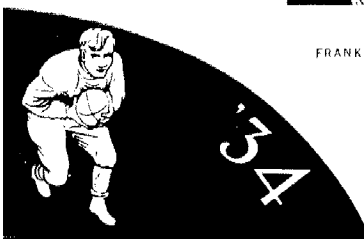

Without curtailing any branch of athletics we have been able to operate and extend under a budget one thousand dollars less than was required in 1932-33.

A promising movement has been begun to reorganize sport under an Athletic Commission, separating athletics from other lines of student endeavour.

However, this year Athletics have shown an upward trend. We firmly believe and hope this a sign of the return to the prominent place on the campus to which this phase of student life is entitled.

The year 1933-34 has been an unusual one for women's athletic teams at the University.

The athletic year opened with an inter-faculty tennis tournament. Inter-Varsity competition with Saskatchewan did not develop, but it is hoped that it will be resumed next season. The Badminton Club had an excellent inter-club competition and were well represented in both city and provincial tournaments.

Coach Parney reported the best turnout he has ever had for basketball, and a trip to Calgary is being planned for the winning team.

The activities of the swimmers were limited this season, and Saskatchewan carried off the honors in the Inter-collegiate meet.

Under the able direction of Helen Ford, the Athletic Executive are to be commended for their year's work.

THE ROOTERS' CLUB

This year saw the last of the old Rally Committee—its functions were taken on in their entirety by the Rooters' Club. Another new feature was brought about when initiation was abolished. This meant that the job of pepping up the freshmen students, so joyously carried on in previous years by the Sophomores, fell almost entirely into the hands of the Rooters' Club and its corps of cheer leaders. Somewhat to the surprise of many of the advocates of the old order, the newer students responded nobly, showing a zest in learning the yells quite equal to that inspired by a threat of tubbing in previous years. This early augured well for the growth of that intangible school spirit, a promise that was fulfilled, resulting in rallies of marked enthusiasm, and an attendance at the games characterized by a spirit of real appreciation of our teams, and vociferous cheering that could be clearly heard across the river on the Municipal Golf Links.

The Rooters' Club wishes to thank the Freshmen class for their co-operation and express the hope that next year's class will rally with the same response.

THE TRAINERS' CLUB

This recent institution, which has for the last four years tended to the aches, cuts and sprains of our athletes is now coming into its own, and is of such proportions as to warrant a shield for faithful service, and the right of its members to wear a distinctive insignia.

During the fall, the training squad is busiest, owing to the new regime of daily rugby practice, but for the winter months, its duties are lighter, and only one or two men are required to be in attendance at hockey practice and scheduled games. While not indispensable, the training squad has done much to keep players "in the pink," and has thereby contributed much to the successes which have marked sports encounters this year. Most of the credit is due to the untiring efforts of Ed. Hoare, who organized the group this season.

Membership in the Trainers' Club is open to any interested Medical Students. Members are entitled to free admission to games when on duty. There will be one or two openings in the Club next fall for the chaps who apply early.

The Rugby season of 1933-34, though not productive of championships, established the foundations of a team which should be a real threat to all opponents next year. Under the able coaching of Al. Wilson, former player and coach of the Moose Jaw Maroons, much new material was moulded into Senior standard.

The Provincial League was reduced to two teams this year—Calgary Altomahs and Varsity. Although we were defeated, Varsity made the series interesting and close by defeating the Altomahs on our own gridiron. Injuries and casualties, however, proved a big factor in the winning scores.

Interest in Western Inter-Collegiate Football was aroused this year by a trip to Vancouver in quest of the Hardy Cup. Alberta won the opening exhibition game, playing under floodlights and in a dense fog, for the first time. British Columbia won the second and deciding game on a very soggy field.

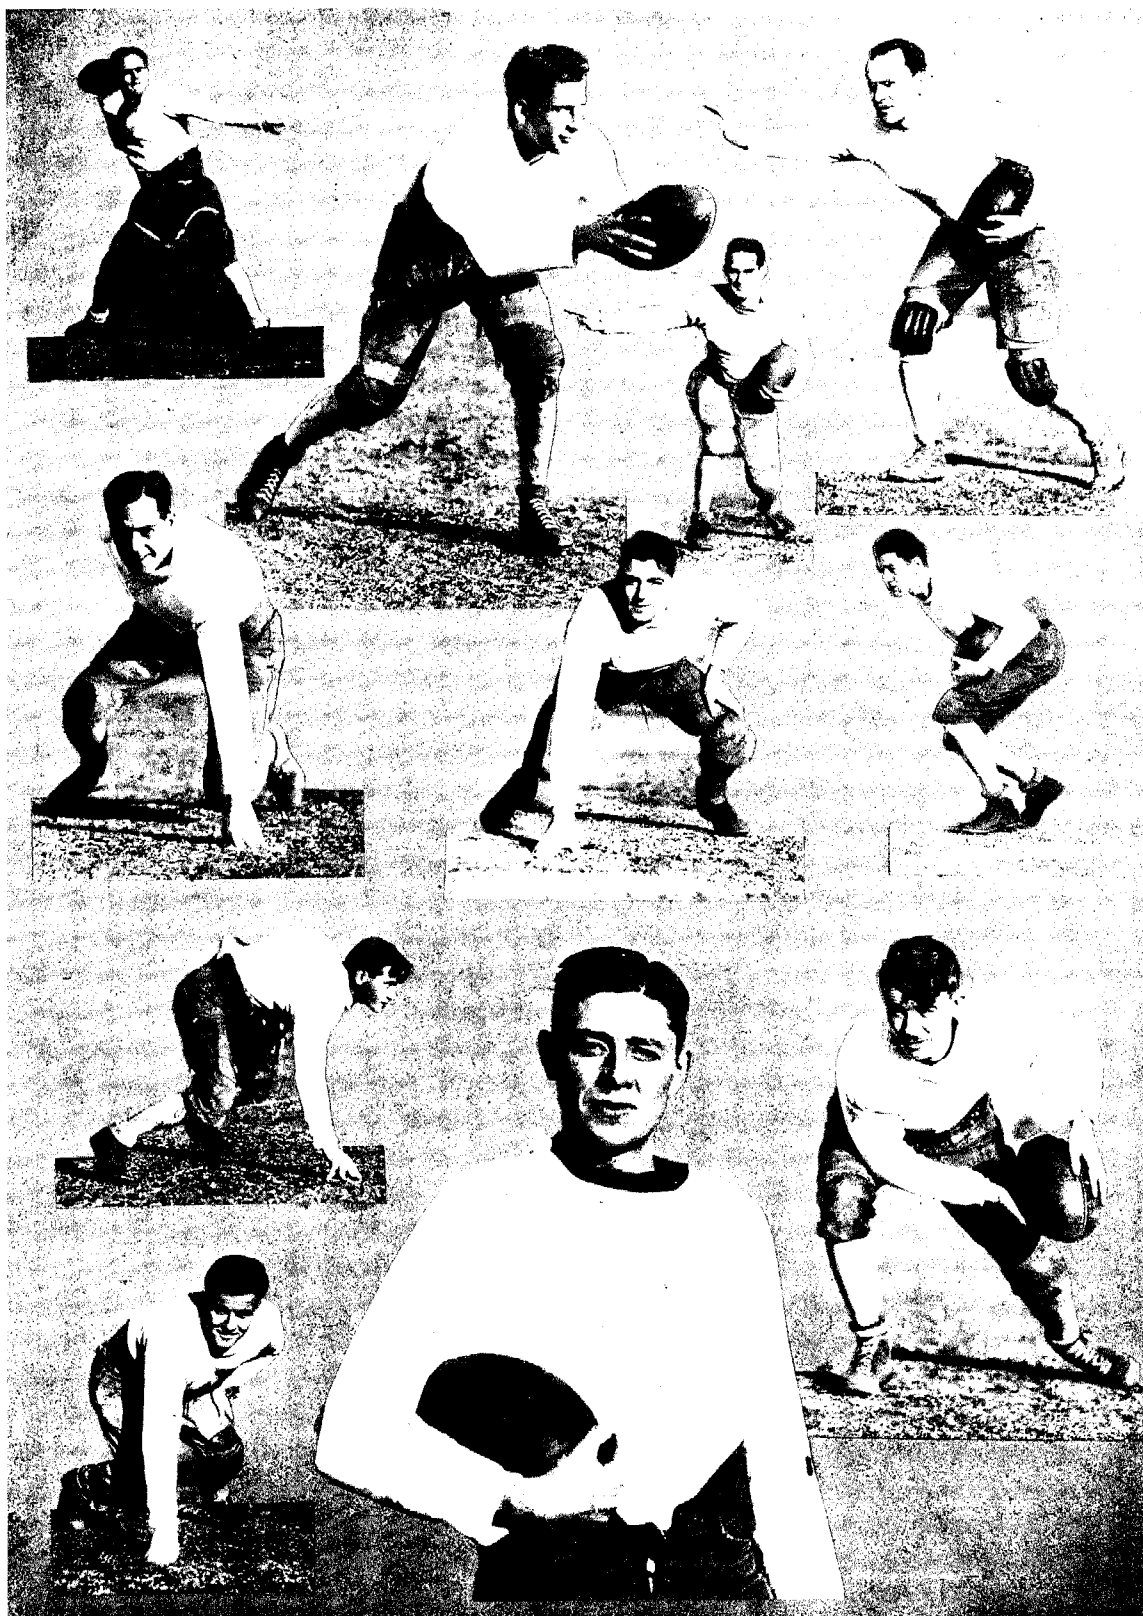

Primarily for financial reasons, Junior Rugby was dropped this year. However, financially, rugby was more of a success than in previous years.

INTER-FACULTY RUGBY

If one were to doubt the enthusiasm, the team spirit which inter-faculty rugby arouses in the one hundred or more students who participate, let him recall the playoff games, when Science triumphed over their age-old rivals the Med-Dents, and the crowd cheered from start to finish. The only score in the strenuous game played in seven inches of snow was a rouge behind the Med line. The outcome was in doubt until the final whistle.

Four teams: "Science," "Med-Dents," "Ag-Laws," "Arts-Com-Pharm" were formed to give balanced teams. The wisdom of this choice was shown when in no game was the winners' score greater than one touchdown and a convert.

The playing season was short. An adequate schedule was difficult to make out due to lectures, labs, and the weather. But with the coming season it is hoped that the games will start within the first week of the term. Members of the Senior team will act as coaches not only to add prestige, but also to supervise the source from which the Senior squad draws its replacements. Proper training and coaching are necessary to develop likely prospects. More equipment will be available next year and with an early start, inter-faculty rugby should experience next fall a season even better than that of 1933-34.

This year the W.C.I.A.U. track meet was held at Alberta on October 14. Unfortunately Saskatchewan was the only University able to send a team, but none the less competition was keen and every point well contested. With ideal weather conditions, Jim Panton of Saskatchewan set a new mark of 5 ft. 10³/₄ in. in the high jump. Harold Riley tied the existing record for the 100 yards, while Bob Cruickshank of Alberta and Dave Kirkbride of Saskatchewan both cleared the bar at 10 ft. 11 in. to set a new record for the pole vault. Saskatchewan retained the Cairns Cup with a score of 77 points to Alberta's 65. Clair Malcolm of Alberta was individual champ with 19 points.

Women's track got away to a good start soon after Varsity opened. At the annual Inter-faculty meet on October 16th freshette Beatrice Gillespie won the trophy presented by Miss E. Bakewell for her score of twenty-three points, obtained in the broad jump, the high jump and sprints. Others who starred brilliantly were Irene Barnett, Jennie Filipkowski, Helen Ford and Ellen Erdman.

The Inter-collegiate meet was held here this year on October 23rd and the six girls chosen to represent this University were: Irene Barnett, Bea Gillespie, Helen Ford, Jennie Filipkowski, Ellen Erdman and Ruth Freeman. These girls came through nobly and carried off the records for the sixty and one hundred yard sprints. Their efforts culminated in the winning of the coveted Rutherford trophy for another year.

To Coach Ernie Williams much of the credit is due for the fine showing at track made by the Alberta girls. His capable coaching has brought us through another successful year.

It is a pleasure this year not to have to proffer any excuses for the Men's Hockey team. The season has been successful in that for the second time in some ten starts, Varsity has secured a place in the city playoffs. It is to the team's credit that they put up two real stiff battles before bowing to their ancient enemies, the Superiors, in the playoff games. To Coach Al Wilson, who was able to build up this squad from a nucleus of last year's players and several promising Freshmen, goes the credit for this success.

A revival of Inter-collegiate Hockey, defunct since 1930, proved to be quite successful. To Coach Wilson's team goes the honor of bringing the Halpenny Cup, emblematic of Western Canada Inter-collegiate Hockey Championship, home to Alberta for the first time. A series of home and home games was staged with Saskatchewan and it was proven that with a little more student interest and a fair break from the weather lady, Inter-collegiate Hockey can pay its own way. Only a small deficit was encountered in spite of the fact that one of the games had to be staged in the midst of a real Alberta Chinook.

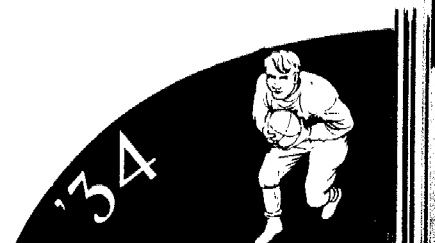

Owing to paucity of funds it was again found impossible to enter a team in the City Intermediate League. Inter-faculty Hockey, however, flourished under the management of Ev. Borgal and Don McLaws. Nine inter-faculty teams provided an opportunity for nearly a hundred students to participate in keen competition.

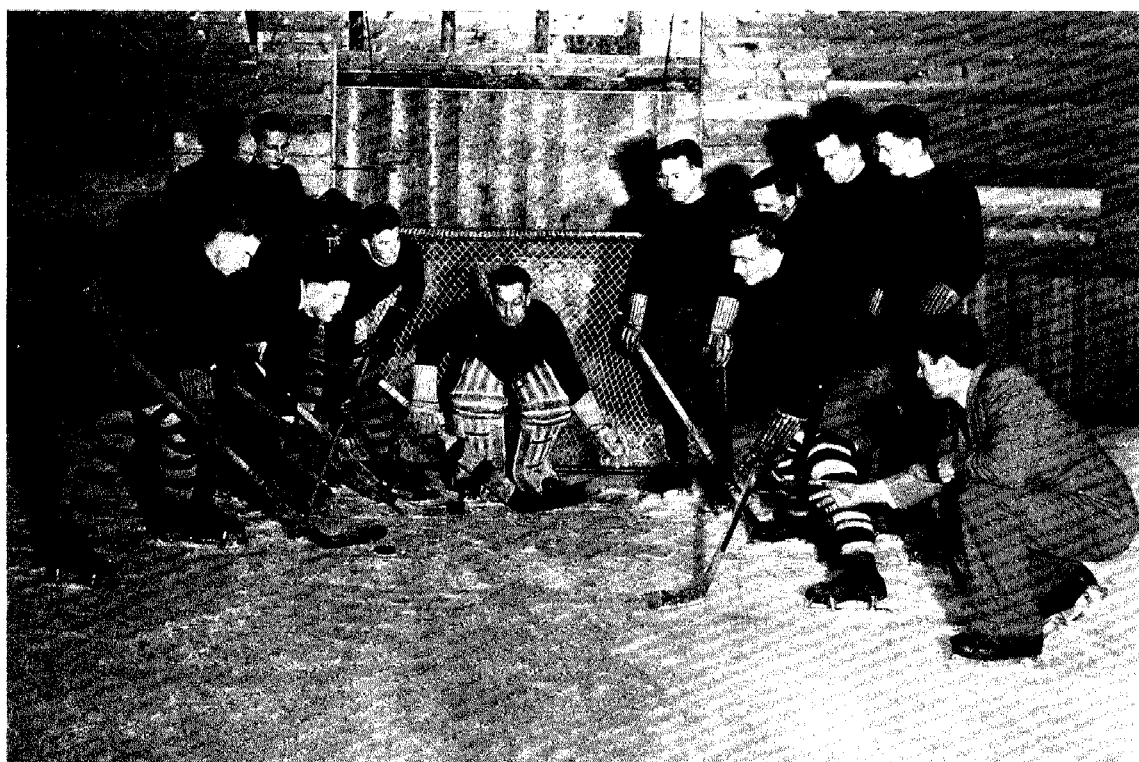

By next fall three members of the Senior team will have marched proudly away with their sheepskins. Two of their places at present seem assured of being filled. Who knows? perhaps next year we may beat the Soops!

INTER-FACULTY CHAMPS

INTER-FACULTY HOCKEY

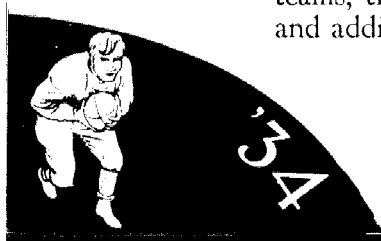

Inter-fac Hockey is increasing in speed and popularity with each successive year. Although handicapped unavoidably this winter with a very short season, due to weather conditions, the league was increased from eight to nine teams, which played altogether forty-seven hotly contested games.

The Dents, this year, dissolved partnership with their former allies, the Meds, and, joining up with their newly-found comrades, the Pharms, managed to produce a threateningly strong team. However, they were eliminated in the semi-finals, after a long and hard battle with the Ag-Com-Law. The contest for the Inter-fac championship was keen and close. No team came through the league undefeated.

The Arts, former champions for the two preceding years, were a great disappointment. Along with the Meds they succeeded in holding down the lower end of the league. The Science and Ag-Com-Law played off for the championship. And what a game! It's just too bad the stands were not filled, for it was real hockey with keen rivalry intermixed with thrills and spills. It was bitter medicine for the Science, when in the overtime period that followed they were forced to admit defeat at the hands of Ag-Com-Law.

However, like truly good sports, they swallowed the dose and recognized the Ag-Com-Law well deserved champions of the league.

In the B Section of the league the Science B team, after a terrific struggle with the Meds finally won out. It is interesting to note, with a tone of suggestion for future teams, that coaching, as demonstrated this year is a very effective method of improving and adding interest to the game.

The past season, 1933-34, was an unusual one for Women's Hockey in that the team was composed entirely of new recruits with the exception of Norma Christie and Nancy Evans who had one year's experience to their credit. This might be called, then, the year of our birth.

We entered the Intermediate City League and competed with the Orioles, the Hustlers of last year and with the Monarchs, Seniors of 1932-33. As usual we were challenged by the Gateway staff which resulted in an hilarious game. Even the north wing of Assiniboia, third floor, called upon us to defend our laurels, few as they were.

We played a series of disheartening defeats, but went into each successive game undaunted and with a new determination. However, it was good fun and better experience and we only hope to merit a little more support next year.

Practises were held regularly, but even with the interest and co-operation of Rink Manager Art Wilson they were held only twice a week because of the crowding of the rink schedule. Unfortunately, towards the end of the season both practises and games were held up for some time due to the mild weather and the resulting condition of the ice. Nevertheless there was a marked improvement after every one of the games we played. At the last, we were really playing hockey.

To the team's credit was the remarkable fact that not one of its chosen players was put on probation at Christmas. And there were no casualties during the year.

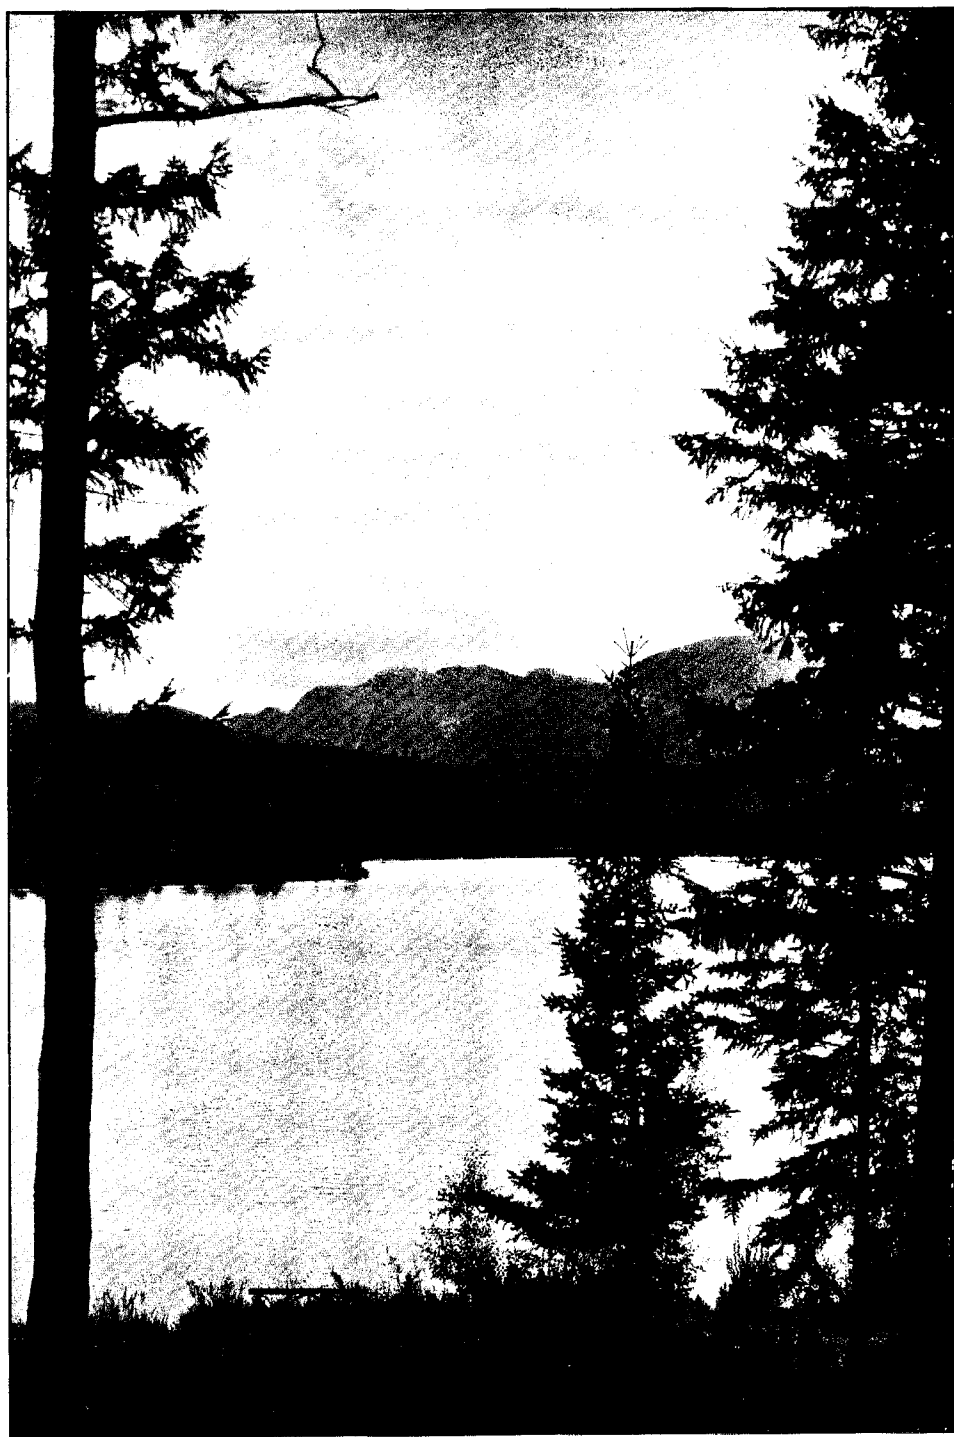

"Skivers" Edwards was our efficient "slave-driving" coach, Mary Hewitt our popular captain, and Nancy Evans our energetic manager. Marjorie Haney, Barbara Burns, Norma Christie, Sadie Gibson, Phyllis Mullen, Muriel O'Brien, Burnice Smith and Jean Smith made up the rest of the team.

And now, until next year at the games, au revoir!

This year saw the passing of a milestone in the history of Basketball in this Province and at the University. There was formed an Inter-city Basketball League, composed of the following four teams: Raymond, Lethbridge, Calgary and Varsity. This is the achievement of the dreams of generations of basketball enthusiasts throughout the province. The league, when once formed, and with the many difficulties which beset the formation of it overcome, has functioned very well.

Under the able guidance of Coach Arnold Henderson, the University team, although not winning the Provincial championship, has made a very creditable showing. Through graduation, six of the ten men on last year's squad were lost, leaving a very large gap to be filled. Thus, as was to be expected under these conditions, inexperience played a large part in the first few games played. However, the team showed marked improvement in each successive game; so much so, in fact, that they have won three out of their last four starts. And there has been fulfilled an ambition of long-standing—namely, defeating the Raymond Union Jacks, perennial Alberta champions, in the last game played against them.

The University Basketball Club was extremely fortunate in being able to resume friendly relations with over-town teams, with the result that a City Intermediate League was formed, composed of six city teams and Varsity. This league has done much to foster interest among younger basketball players, and on the Intermediate team of this season there is much good material from which to draw for Senior teams of the future. At the present time, Varsity stands in second place in the league, with a very good chance of winning the city championship.

INTERMEDIATE BASKETBALL

For our second successive year the Intermediate squad was under the mentorship of Coach Arnold Henderson, former U.B.C. star. As the Senior team's only Edmonton opposition, the Intermediates obtained a good deal of valuable experience and training. With these advantages, they proved to be a strong team in the City League.

Five city teams and one from Varsity were entered in this league which was organized just before the Christmas vacation. Games for qualification for the provincial show-downs were incorporated in the league but unfortunately Varsity found it impossible to enter a team in the play-offs. The series of games began the first week in January and Varsity played twice a week. Home and home games were played in the Upper Gym and at McDougall High School. Although the attendance was not all that might be desired, the brand of play was nevertheless fast and interesting to watch.

The line-up was bolstered with a few stalwarts of last year's squad while the majority came from the Freshmen ranks. The Freshmen showed great promise and several should make strong bids for the vacancies on next year's Senior team.

The Intermediates occupy the position of being an ideal reservoir for Senior players. With constantly the same coach against Senior material, these men are invaluable in attempting to field a strong Senior line-up in the Provincial League.

INTER-FACULTY BASKETBALL

Under the capable management of Johnny Woznow, with whom the various faculty managers co-operated splendidly, inter-faculty basketball has had one of its most successful seasons.

This year saw the schedule divided into two parts. The first, played before the Christmas holidays, consisted of a series of exhibition games in order that the faculty managers might sound out the material which would present itself, and combine the best into a working unit. Each year sees many inter-faculty players graduate, leaving openings for newcomers to fill. Every student who believes his abilities are not equal to Senior standards should not pass up the opportunity offered by inter-faculty basketball of enjoying the game. Besides providing a means of obtaining an hour or two of good healthful exercise each week, the rudiments of the game are expanded upon, and inter-fac players often make the Senior and Intermediate teams.

The faculties this year were divided as follows: "Ag-Arts," "Med-Dents," "Pharm-Com-Law," and "Science." This division is not permanent but is drawn up every fall in an attempt to equalize the teams with a view to furthering better competition.

The second half, played after Christmas, was a series of home and home games in which each faculty strove to win a place in the playoffs. Each game was packed full of aggressiveness, speed, and basketball, and although not of Senior calibre, not far from it.

The playoffs found the Aggies, Meds and Science teams all tied for first place. The first round saw the hard-fighting Ags drop out, leaving the old rivals, Meds and Science as finalists. The final was a game royal, the score favoring first one side and then the other. A final rally by Science resulted in the winning of the game by the small margin of three points, enabling them to retain the cup for another year.

Another season has come to a close and the hour of reckoning is at hand. From a standpoint of actual wins and losses, the season has not been very successful. On other points this year's play was one of the best. The Varsity team, although possessed of much good material, lacked experience. Due to a large graduation among other things, the beginning of the year found us with only two former senior players and several squad members. However, the freshettes contributed a larger number of promising recruits than was usual.

This year showed several new turns in policy. More girls were carried on the squad and an attempt was made toward an intermediate team. This was done to furnish more experienced material for next year's line-up. With only two graduations this team should be off to a better start next fall. Also this year there was an arrangement of games with the Edmonton "Grads." It is to be hoped that these pre-season games will be maintained next year, as it gives the girls the best competition possible.

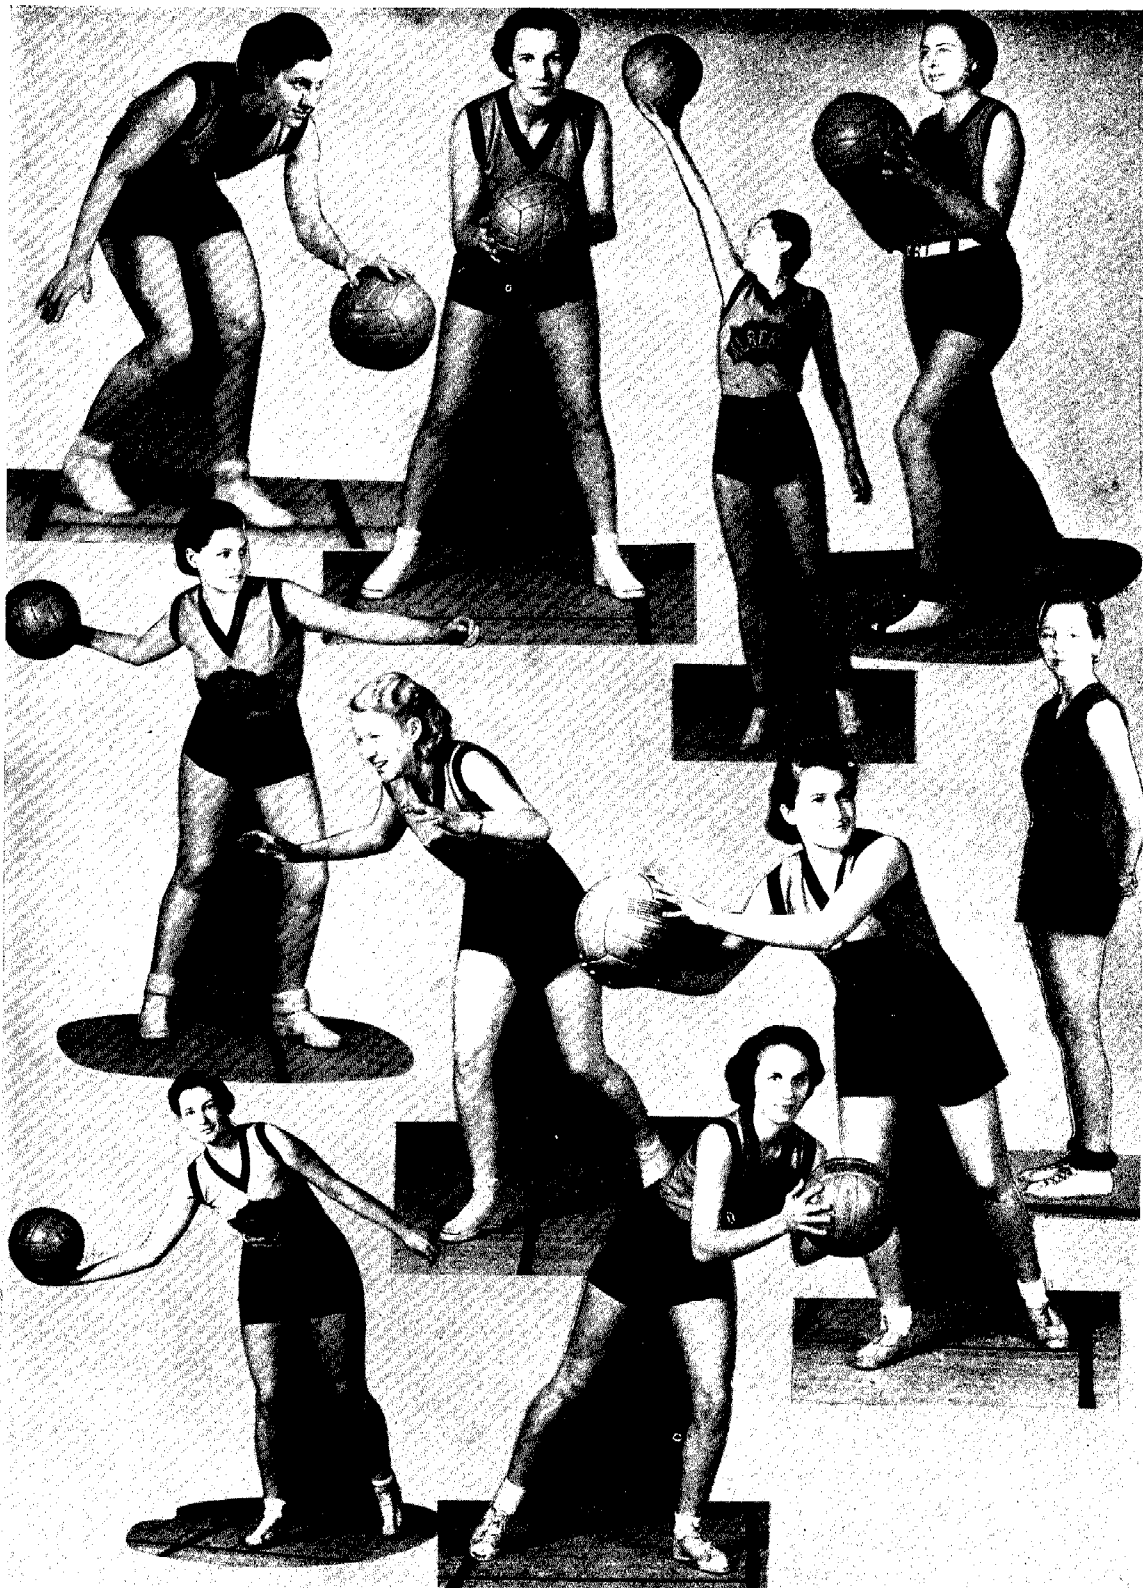

It is to be regretted that Manitoba could not make arrangements for Inter-Varsity competition. We hope this may be resumed next year, such competition being the best basis for Varsity sport.

We close on a note of optimism for Senior Basketball. The girls enjoyed the game and enjoyed playing it together. That, after all, is what counts. This year they have learned much together and hope to go farther next year.

The team consisted of: Forwards, Amy Cogswell, Mary Howard, Gwen Nixon, Marg Sutton; guards, Evelyn Barnett, Ruth Carlyle, Jean Cohen, Helen Ford, Kay Swallow; centres, Irene Barnett, Betty Black. This year they were under the capable management of Kay Swallow.

INTERMEDIATE BASKETBALL TEAM

Such a snappy lot of freshettes turned out for basketball this fall that Coach Parney decided something should be done to encourage this new talent. An intermediate team was formed in addition to the Senior team. These young hoopsters, so ably managed by Kay Swallow, were entered in the City league. In this league the Eskimos and the Comets were the only other teams entered against Varsity for the championship.

In the first game of the season our young hopefuls played the Comets on the Varsity floor. Due to inexperience and insufficient practise on the part of our players, the Comets walked away with the game. The next two games were played against the Eskimos. Our girls showed considerable improvement in the first game when they tied with their heavier opponents. We feel they would have won but for lack of scoring ability at the crucial moments. This again may be attributed to lack of experience. The second game was played at Sunnydale Pavilion. Here the girls went down to defeat, fighting gamely every inch of the way.

Shortly after Christmas the Intermediate team was withdrawn from the City League in order to concentrate on the Senior schedule. Several of the players moved up to this team.

In future years it would be advisable to have a separate manager for this team, making it more independent, with a better chance for success. Also, it is to be hoped that next year the Intermediates will be able to draw more strength from the House League than has been possible to date. With these improvements, we feel that in coming years the players on this team will prove a valuable asset to the athletic activities of our University.

HOUSE LEAGUE BASKETBALL

Another basketball season has drawn to a close. In survey, perhaps as never before has the standard of House League play exhibited a quicker tempo or a finer precision than during the past year. This may be largely attributed to the fact that a greater proportion of Freshettes have made the game one of their active interests with the full intention of following it up. Then, too, owing to an innovation that was made, the services of a student coach, Ollie Rostrup, were made available. No casualties due to academic standing were reported. Incidentally, all this augurs well for the success of future Senior teams.

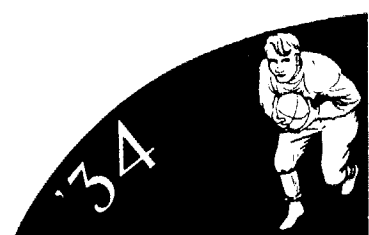

After a month's preliminary coaching, teams were definitely organized and all League games were scheduled as E. Bakewell Trophy playoffs. Early in February the Arrows under Kay Stockton, emerged as winners of the series, closely followed by the Pembinites under Irene James.

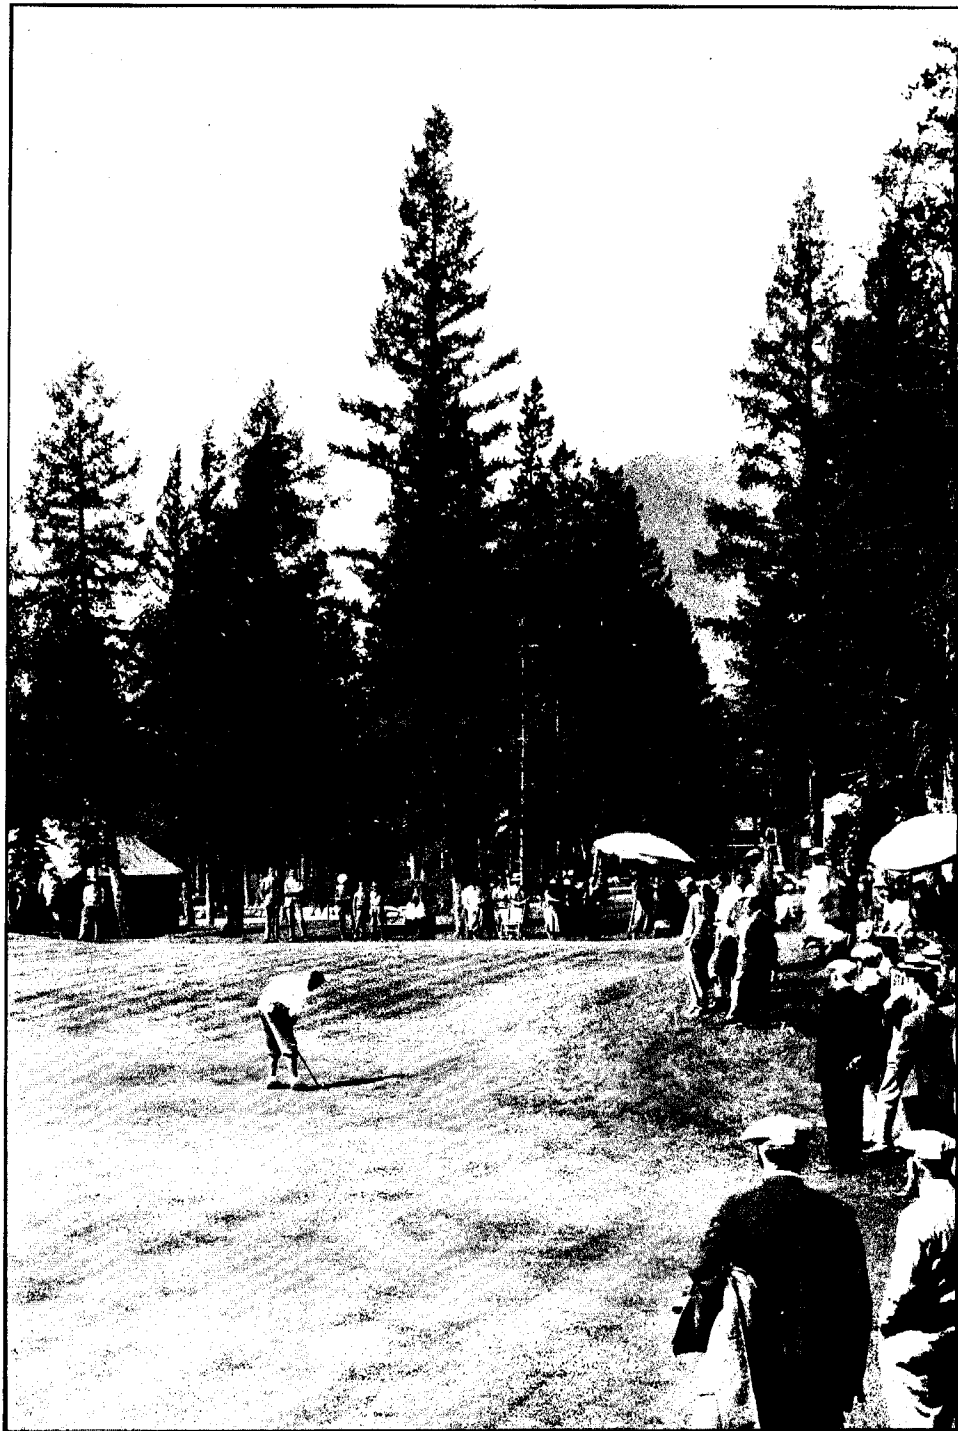

Following the playoffs, a series of exhibition games with outside teams, such as Gladys Fry's South Side Sharks were scheduled. To supply the opposition, either one of the League's leading teams was chosen. At the time of going to press, we have been vanquished so far by a close margin, nevertheless, we are not without hopes!

The winning lineup, holders of the E. Bakewell Trophy for this year: Kay Stockton (captain), Jean Irving, Margaret MacDougall, Gwen Nixon, Margaret Smith, Mary Smith, Hazel Wilkinson, Flora Williams.

And the Pembinites, runners up: Irene James (captain), Betty Thompson, Gertrude Ellert, Margaret Aldwinckle, Jeanne Crawford, Margaret McDonald.

The student manager, Jenny Filipkowski, was both efficient and capable.

THE BADMINTON CLUB

The Badminton Club during the 1933-34 season did not have quite the membership of the previous season, but it did have fully the enthusiasm. The game is played three nights weekly on two well equipped and well lighted courts in the gymnasium.

During the five years since the Club's inception, the standard of badminton reached has been comparable with that of other clubs in the city, which is really remarkable when one considers the limited playing hours. For the past two seasons, the University Students' Club has entered teams in the city inter-club league, and have made a very creditable showing. The league is divided into three sections, according to ability, each section playing a separate schedule, so that beginners and more experienced players alike have the opportunity for good practice.

The annual Club tournament provided some very good games. Fraser Mitchell won the men's singles title in three hard fought sets over Harry Cooper. Nancy Stiel won a hard fought match from Janet Atkin to win the ladies' singles title. Fern Atkinson and Eyton Embury combined to take the ladies' doubles title from Marion Bell and Betty Farquharson, and the latter with Harry Cooper won the mixed event.

Some individuals consider this game one which should be played by older people or those who prefer their recreation indoors. Badminton is a game adapted primarily to the young person because it calls for great agility and keenness of eye. When one commences to play, he is struck by the concentration and energy which is required, and perception and anticipation. Thus badminton makes a splendid game for those students desiring a lot of real exercise in a short time.

TENNIS

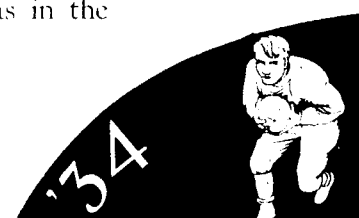

Well to the fore, will the 1933 fall season of tennis at U. of A. take its place in the annals of this institution. The activities were largely limited to friendly matches and the annual tournament. It was hoped that University of Saskatchewan would be able to field a team for inter-collegiate competition but as it was unable to do so, Alberta retains her honors won at Saskatoon in 1932.

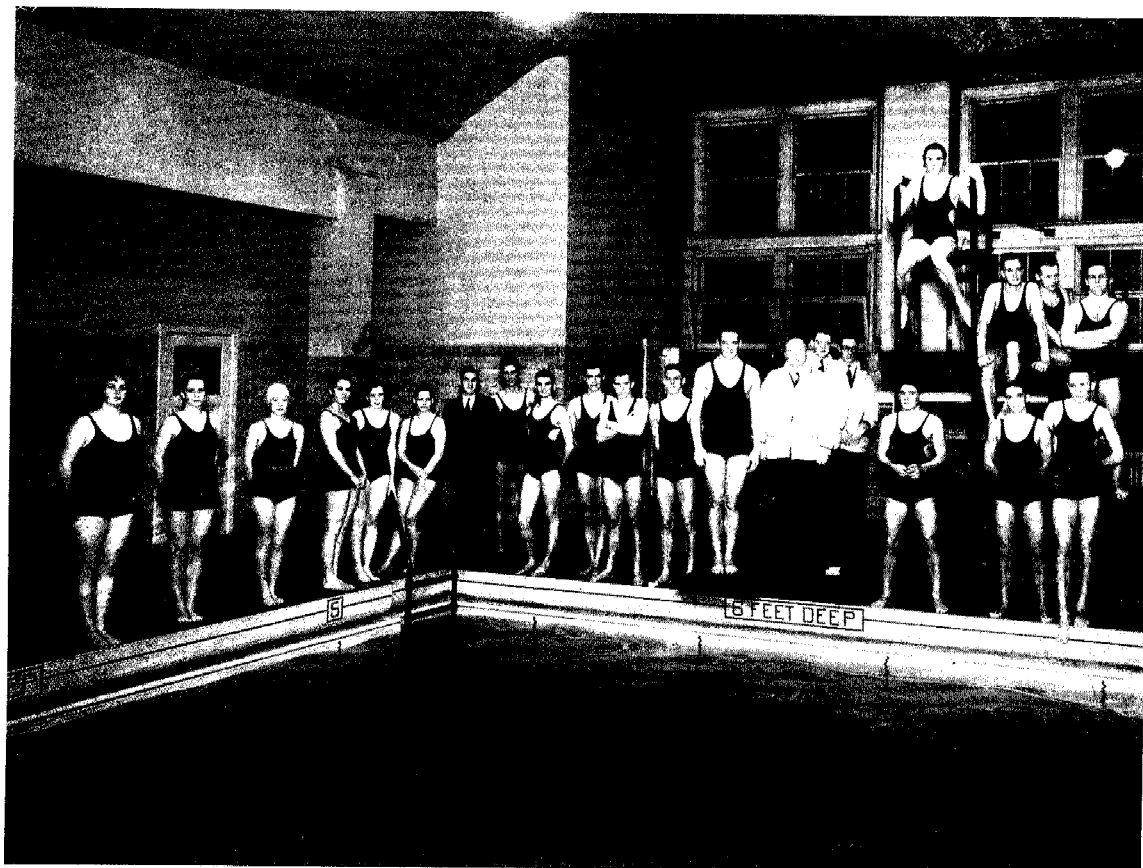

While it is not claimed that this year's tournament was the most successful in our history, the tremendous interest shown was well evidenced by what are believed to be record entries in most of the events.

George McFadzean, Stettler flash and ninth ranking player in provincial tennis circles, swept aside all opposition in the men's singles event. Without the loss of a set, McFadzean stroked his way through a field of no less than seventy-three entrants to defeat Eby Quehl in the final. He then teamed with Guy Morton to take the men's doubles event besting in the final match Bill Anderson and Dick Hurlburt.

Kathleen Swallow was crowned Queen of Varsity tennis by virtue of a well merited win over Jean Schurer in the ladies' singles event, while the Darrah family, Maxine and Bob, were the successful mixed doubles team defeating Lois Latimer and John Garrett in a torrid three-setter. The ladies' doubles event was not completed.

Despite the unfavorable time of year which does not lend itself to the best display of tennis ability, many fine matches were played. A marked improvement in the calibre of tennis at this University was noticeable, not so much in the individual stars as in the standard of the average tennis enthusiast.

SWIMMING CLUB

Although the season of 1933-34 may be looked back upon as another successful one, it has passed rather quietly for the Swimming Club. After two extremely good years, the activities were restricted this winter due to a lack of proper pool facilities, resulting in a decline in membership.

Despite this fact, the men's team appears to be a much stronger and better conditioned squad than last year's. It has not suffered any loss because of graduation and has acquired a great deal of new blood from the Freshman ranks.

The women's team, too, is still intact from last year, but considerably strengthened by a promising line-up of newcomers.

The Inter-Collegiate meet held on March 3rd witnessed the return of the men's title to Saskatchewan after having remained here for two successive seasons. The visiting women were again successful in defending their title.

The Club has functioned smoothly and efficiently under the able direction of Lyle Jestley and Rod McDonald. With prospects of better pool facilities and an increased membership, season 1934-35 has the makings of just one more banner year in the history of the Swimming Club.

BOXING AND WRESTLING CLUB

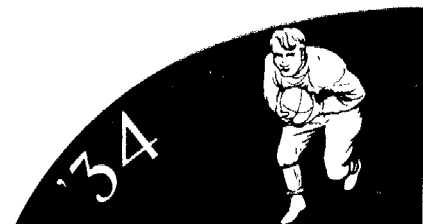

The University Boxing and Wrestling Club enjoyed the most successful year of its career. This was mainly due to the efficient organization of the executive and the willing co-operation of the coaches and the boys.

The incentive of competition added to the interest in the Club, joint workouts being held with the wrestlers from the Y.M.C.A., and a boxing team sent to Camrose early in the season. This trip was very successful because, although the boys faced experienced opponents, two of the team, Hilliker and O'Brien, won their bouts and the others turned in very creditable performances.

The final event of the year was the University Boxing and Wrestling tournament. Members of the Y.M.C.A. Boxing and Wrestling teams were invited to participate, and an excellent card of inter-faculty, University vs. Y.M.C.A., and exhibition bouts offered. Two feature bouts were carded, through the kindness of the Y, between Louis Lavoie and Blocklinger, and Pat Meehan and Sil Knudsen. The interest of the large crowd was obtained at the beginning and held throughout, and their appreciation was expressed in no uncertain terms.

Winners for Varsity were: Borgal, Davis, Dowdell, while Jack Garry and Bill McGee won their bouts for the Y.

The Club owes a great deal to Dean Howes, the Honorary President, for the enthusiasm shown, and assistance given, throughout the season.

UNIVERSITY OF ALBERTA CONTINGENT CANADIAN OFFICERS' TRAINING CORPS.

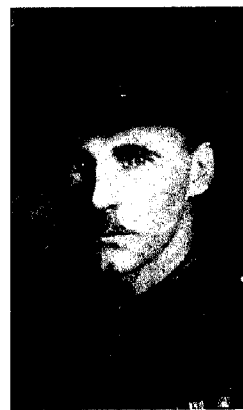

With the writing of the War Office "A" and "B" certificate examinations on March 13th and 14th another successful year of the C.O.T.C. is drawing to a close. Although the numbers trained were less than last year owing to a new policy adopted this session, the standard of efficiency was, we believe, a little higher.

PAYMASTER

Training was carried out in nearly all branches of the service, the results of the various examinations being shown elsewhere.

THE GENERAL INSPECTION was held at the Prince of Wales' Armoury on Saturday, February 24th. Brigadier H. H. Matthews, C.M.G., D.S.O., District Officer Commanding Military District Number Thirteen after conducting a thorough inspection of the Unit, expressed himself as being entirely satisfied, commented on the smart appearance of the cadets, especially mentioning the "March Past" and stated that he considered the efficiency of both officers and other ranks, was decidedly higher than last year. This was particularly gratifying, as the Unit was working under certain difficulties last session which had not existed previously. Our honourary Colonel His Honour the Lieutenant Governor was "on parade" and took the Royal Salute from the Unit at the close of the inspection.

ROYAL CANADIAN AIR FORCE TRAINING—No members of the Unit attended R.C.A.F. camp during last session but there is a possibility of one or two of our officers who are graduating from the University this year being accepted for the Ab Initio course commencing next September.

McDermid Engraved

FROM COVER TO COVER

EVERGREEN AND GOLD for 1934 is much more than a Year Book. It is television--via the halftone--to the homes of members of the student body of the University of Alberta and to their friends. Never in all the distinguished career of our University has such a splendid volume been compiled. Each year the task becomes more difficult--each year the University has succeeded in producing a Year Book Staff equal to the occasion--Ever to Progress. In a year such as we have passed, what a mistake some minds might have made of the situation! What a temptation to water the wine, to cheapen the printing and befog the engravings--ever so little. But never. The Year Book Directorate of 1934 has staked it's all on the principle that the best is never too good. The workaday world may go off the gold standard--but not Evergreen and Gold. Witness this volume in every detail. And, also, if you please, the fact that it is McDermid Engraved from cover to cover.

DARKNESS into LIGHT by pressing a button...

HOMER'S servants brought in flaming torches of pitch pine when darkness fell. Caesar had Christians saturated with an inflammable substance and burned them to illuminate his games at night.

IN THE classical period, earthenware or bronze lamps with one or more wicks and burning olive oil were used... from whence the expression "burning the midnight oil" can easily be traced.

OUR MORE immediate ancestors had guttering candles and, later, smelly kerosene lamps. Our grandfathers had gaslight and, if they lived to a ripe old age, would have known electricity.

WE CAN have but a faint idea of the difficulties and expense which confronted our forebears in their endeavors to snatch a few hours of light from darkness, for we can have limitless illumination at negligible cost by pressing a button.

I SAW THIS YEAR

BASHFUL BURKE, the blithesome bather, brightening the body beautiful.

Jay Burke has the distinctive honour of being the only man in history whose rise to fame resulted from an irrepressible desire to come clean. He changed his B.O. to B.U. (Body Urge), but is here seen resolving never to take a bath again.

In the morning, when the mood for the day is forming, the sense of taste is particularly keen.

All over Northern Alberta—when Sandwiches are the vogue—the particular hostess selects McGavin's Family Size Sandwich Loaf. She knows that it will cut to thin slices without crumbling—that it will "roll," "checker" or "lie flat," just as she requires for the special style or shape of Sandwich she has in mind.

McGavin's Sandwich Loaf is made from specially selected ingredients, with extra care to produce that necessary close, even texture.

You Want Carefree Service HERE IT IS!

It is difficult to imagine a mechanism built with such precision, efficiency and quality that it will continue to operate perfectly for a lifetime. Yet, Westinghouse have built such a unit in the Dual-Automatic Refrigerator.

You can forget there is a motor in this refrigerator - it never requires oiling . . . it never needs adjusting . . . it never needs servicing or repairs . . . there are no belts or connections to cause trouble . . . and, even under abnormal power conditions, the Built in Watchman safeguards both the food and mechanism—automatically shutting off the power until the danger is past then restoring it.

The "Dual-Automatic" Refrigerator has many other important features, such as Lighted Interior, Sliding Shelves, Refrigerated Shelf in the All-porcelain Frost-free and Economatic Temperature setting—also the "Thank You" door.

Your Westinghouse dealer will gladly demonstrate and explain what these exclusive and modern features mean in dollars and service.

Famous Organizations

THE VARSITY SKI CLUB is one of the largest non-Students Union organizations on the campus. Except for a certain lack of snow and other circumstances over which it had no control, the Ski Club would have undoubtedly gone on some very enjoyable ski hikes and held some highly successful parties in the basement of the Tuck Shop.

The following ditty could have been introduced as the new Ski Club song if we had made it up instead of flagrantly stealing it out of the Toronto 'Varsity'.

SKIS

I think that I shall never see
A snowshoe lovely as a ski,
A ski whose tip so oft is pressed
Against my prone, defenceless chest,
A ski that's in the other's way,
And crossing makes me kneel to pray,
A ski that causes me to wear
A nest of partridge in my hair
Within my bosom, snow has lain,
And I've a sharp posterior pain—
Snowshoes were made for dubs like me,
But maybe --- might learn to ski.

Infamous Organizations

THE WOMAN HATERS CLUB, composed largely of T.W.H. (The Woman Hater) and T.O.W.H. (The Other Woman Hater) is the largest non faculty, non-Students Union, non University, non-professional, non resident, noncommittal, nondescript, and non compos mentis club on the campus. The Club is largely a direct antithesis of the Twitterers Club, composed largely of H. Russel Lee, and G. Durward Mills whose nefarious doings have largely been a matter of general comment for some time to come.

The aims and ideals largely include the promotion of a feeling of hostility between the sexes. The advantages are largely obvious to everyone (except the members).

The unpolluted, untainted, and largely unsullied personnel of this unblemished and uncorrupted organization is not to be confused with the impure, indecent, and largely indelicate membership of the obscene and unchaste Bachelors' Club who are nothing but a bunch of cheap pansies, anyway.

To the many thousands, largely composed of T. Z. MacNab, and Ed. Jordan, who have been refused membership, The Woman Haters Club expresses its sincere regrets, but it must be largely borne in mind.

"Nothing is worse than hell. Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned. Therefore a woman's scorn is nothing."

Can You Spare $2.26 a Week?

It's not a great deal, yet a weekly deposit of this amount in a Bank of Montreal Savings Account will give you $500.00 in four years—quite a substantial sum to leave college with.

On this plan you pay in during the four years $470.08. The Bank adds interest to the extent of $29.92.

Will you have $500.00 in your bank account when college is over and your business life begins?

Demonstrating Why "It Pays to Shop at Eaton's"

The lower the distributors charge---in other words, the lower the rate of retail profit---the better for both producer and consumer. A low profit means better value to the consumer---more goods sold---more employment for the workers in its production.

Eaton's, having the advantages of the economies of selling for cash can make its prices lower to the consumer. This claim is backed by the well-known EATON guarantee of "Goods Satisfactory or Money Refunded."

It is not difficult to appreciate that the combined elements of the EATON system---quantity buying at direct sources---small profits on close markings---quick turnover in big volume---buying and selling for cash, provide a range and quality of merchandise at prices that give force and meaning to the slogan, "It Pays to Shop at Eaton's."

Planning a Course

There is a parallel between the distant days when Columbus set sail to seek new lands for Spain, and the modern man or woman who aspires to success.

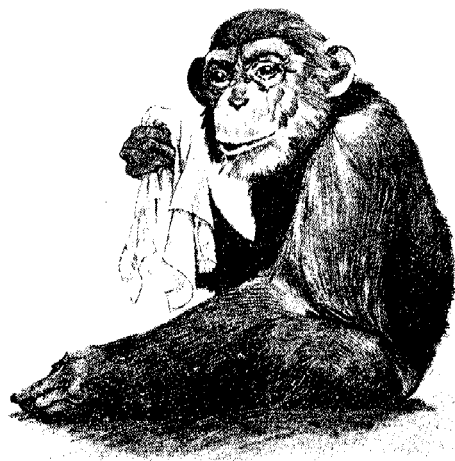

The goal must be set, and the course charted, from day to day, to suit the constant flux of current business conditions.

To graduates and undergraduates alike we hope this newspaper will help them to keep in touch with the National and International events that shape the lives of the World's greatest men and women.

"TRUE BLUE HAROLD" Or "VIRTUE'S TRIUMPH" A Drama in Three Acts

THIS DAWN, on the old homestead Hiram and his loving helpmeet, Agnes, are holding council with their only offspring, Marv.

ACT I

HIRAM:

Before this westering sun has shot its bolt,
I must release my claims and loose my holt,
On this hyar farin—ah curse the luckless fate
That made my payments on the mortgage late.

MARY:

Hold, Father, prithee dry thy dribbling tear,
There is yet time, for Harold may appear.
He may at least have something bright to say,
Fear not, oh gentle sire, love always finds a way.

AGNES:

Oh gentle daughter, must I live to see
The helpless babe I dandled on my knee
Turned out of home, or bear the bitter shame
Of saving us, by tarnishing her name.

MARY:

Alas, fond mother, though my heart says nay,
Needs must I wed, for Harold cannot pay.

ACT II.

Five hours later. The villain is vainly trying to collect his money—he stands with his left arm akimbo—
with his right hand he twirls an enormous moustachio

VILLAIN:

Now at long last, has come the fateful hour.
Ah! ha! ha! ha! I have you in my power!
Pay me my gold or you shall rue the day
On which I took sweet Mary far away.

MARY:

Oh loathsome monster, were my Harold here
How swiftly would he box thy boorish ear.

(TO HERSELF):

Ah, woe is me! Be still my fluttering heart,
For I must be prepared, to play my piteous part.

VILLAIN.

Ah, my proud beauty! Now you choose to cry,
Naught can avail thee, dry thy pretty eye.
Ha! Ha! Ha! Ha! Ha!
Ha! Ha! Ha! Ha! Ha!

ACT III

Five hours later. Poor Mary has gathered up her precious belongings and is about to depart with the villain--when suddenly in the distance is heard the clipclop of horses' hoof-beats on the road

MARY.

Ah! List 'tis Harold coming on his horse,
Thrice happy day, that things should take this course

VILLAIN

Think you, yond stripling can forestall my plan.

HIRAM:

Gol-darn it if he aint the meanest type of man

(Enter True-Blue Harold--his chest heaves convulsively, his eyes are dilated--he immediately rushes to Mary, who hurls herself into his arms.)

HAROLD.

Fear not, dear Mary, cast, cast away thy tear,
For all is safe, when True-Blue doth appear.
(Advances towards Villain in menacing manner)
And as for you, take that, and that, and that,
(He strikes him thrice and knocks the villain flat.)
Here is your money, prithee hie thee hence
Your odious presence gives us all offence

EPILOGUE.

And so life goes--it's very hard to sav
Just what will happen upon any day
But villains pay the price for all their sins,
While virtue triumphs, True-Blue Harold wins.

ORDINARILY, we believe in Beauty for Beauty's sake, but all beauty does not inspire love. Take Taylor, for instance. Somebody's got to take her—we won't. The beautiful can never die! And yet methinks the beauties in this book are half dedicated already. Take Wilkinson, for instance! Somebody's got to take her—we won't. Beauty in its widest sense, take Kate Smith for instance, includes Beauty Proper, don't take Atkinson for instance, in which the esthetic faculty, Arts for instance, with due exertion apprehends and grasps the unity and perfection of form, take Smith for instance.

The time has come when we must all rally round with no end of boogle, or something, I'll bet, on account of men may come and men may go, but a thing of beauty may annoy forever. Take Stockton, for instance.

. . . . Only Development is Progress

FROM the day Natural Gas was discovered in Alberta, to the present is only a period of time. But the development from the first well to the extensive distribution systems maintained by these two Public Utilities is a distinct era in the progress of the Province.

Homes, as well as Public and Commercial Buildings, are enjoying a higher standard of comfort, convenience and cleanliness through the use of Natural Gas. Industries have been created and their markets expanded through the greater efficiency and low-cost-operation Natural Gas has made possible.

As this Province again faces forward these two Utilities—Pledged to Good Public Service—accept the challenge of the years ahead to do their part in keeping Alberta a better place in which to live—and in which to work.

THE MODERN TESTAMENT

IN THE beginning Arnold created great surprise by beating Bierwagen in the Students Union Elections. And there was darkness on the face of the earth.

And it came to pass that on his right hand was one Bessie, of the tribe of Clark, while on his left hand was an old glove, and on his face an ingratiating smile.

And a man was made from the dust of the earth.

And Arnold looked on that which was made, and beheld it was no good. And Arnold said let this man be Prevey.

And the court Jestley was Lyle.

And the powers that be said, let there be no hazing. And to the Freshmen poured in from all corners of the earth, and from the corner of First and Jasper, and flooded the Campus.

And Harry Lister builded him a sign in the Arts Rotunda And did pitch it within and without with pitch and finally did pitch it within the Arts building without delay

And every beast, and every creeping thing (Ken Ives), and every Freshman whatsoever went in two and two unto Convocation Hall, as the sign decreed

And four days and four nights the flood was on the University and the Frosh prevailed mightily in their insolence

And it came to pass that in the second month there came one Arbee, who was a power in the land And the stranger stood at the gate way, and lashed the populace with his tongue, saying as he stood.

Too choosey are ye, get ye hence into the land of sewers and dig ditches And the Sophomores were sore amazed

The Seniors were sore.

And a great scandal came upon the land, for Lewis, high priest unto the Juniors, went to Arnold and said, I have dreamed a dream

In my dream I beheld seven lean cattle and seven fat cattle. Canst thou interpret this dream?

And Arnold spake unto Lewis, saying

Behold there comes the second day of the Junior Prom ticket sale. And lo, the Ag Freshmen have scalped all the tickets, excepting of seven, which will be raffled off to all bona fide Seniors in Arts 152, at 4:30 p.m.

And it was so.

Now at this time came a stranger from Kal Garee seeking redress of 56,860 shekels, which the University did fork over right cheerily.

Yea, verily, what a horse.

And there appeared a great wonder in March, for the great dragon was cast out, and lo, Bierwagen was the new President, on his seven and twentieth attempt.

And furthermore there were lightnings, and thunderings, and an earthquake, and great hail, and a loud commanding voice was heard above the tumult, saying

No smoking in the halls, gentlemen!

PROGRESS

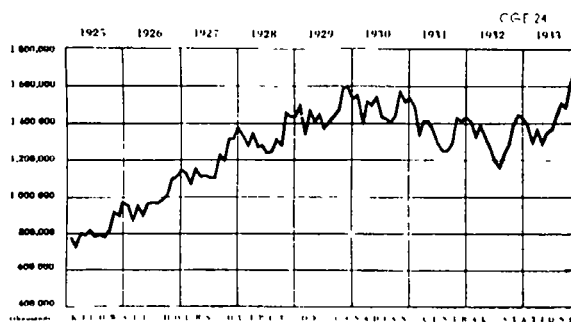

ELECTRIC power production in Canada reached a new high in December, 1933—and is still climbing rapidly. The output of Canadian central stations in December was 6.7 per cent. greater than the previous record reached in November, 1929. The progress of the electrical industry is based on service. In hundreds of ways—from lighting a small lamp to driving a huge motor—electricity is proving itself to be the reliable, economical source of power.

The progress of G-E products is also based on service—service to hundreds of thousands of users in the business and home life of Canada. Rigid tests and scientific methods of manufacture ensure the high service value of these made-in-Canada products bearing the well-known G-E monogram.

Whether it is a tiny lamp for your home, or complete electrical equipment for a plant—look for the “G-E” monogram on “everything electrical”—it is your guarantee of quality.

THE PHANTOM

THE ABOVE are two police photographs of the notorious gang leader, Phreddy the Phantom, revealing his ability to change his features at will. This bloodthirsty fiend has a long police record, having spent thirty seven years in Leavenworth for stealing pansies from the Phi Delt House, and being C.B.'d for seven days for running his Aunt Harriet through the clothes wringer. It can be plainly seen that this ruthless monster is a very naughty man. Good luck, Phreddy!

FOR centuries the Hudson's Bay Company has been equipping men to live and travel under strenuous conditions. The Point Blanket is the product of this experience. English, Australian, Indian and Swiss wools are blended to create the warmth, water resisting and enduring qualities. Prospecting parties into the Arctic Circle of Canada, expeditions to the South Pole and to the conquest of Mt. Everest regard the Hudson's Bay Point Blanket as standard equipment. You will find them in the ski lodges of the Laurentians and the hunting lodges of the Rockies. In lighter weights and delicate pastel shades, they are now used in Canadian homes where quality is appreciated.

APPRECIATION

THE "EVERGREEN and GOLD" is grateful for this opportunity to thank its helpers. The growth and development of the 1934 Year Book has to a great extent been achieved thru the untiring efforts and helpful aid of the staff, and of a few outside the immediate staff. Accordingly we reach for the laurel wreath from the head of our beloved Omslopagas and trust that it will be large enough to crown those who have so deservedly earned a reward.

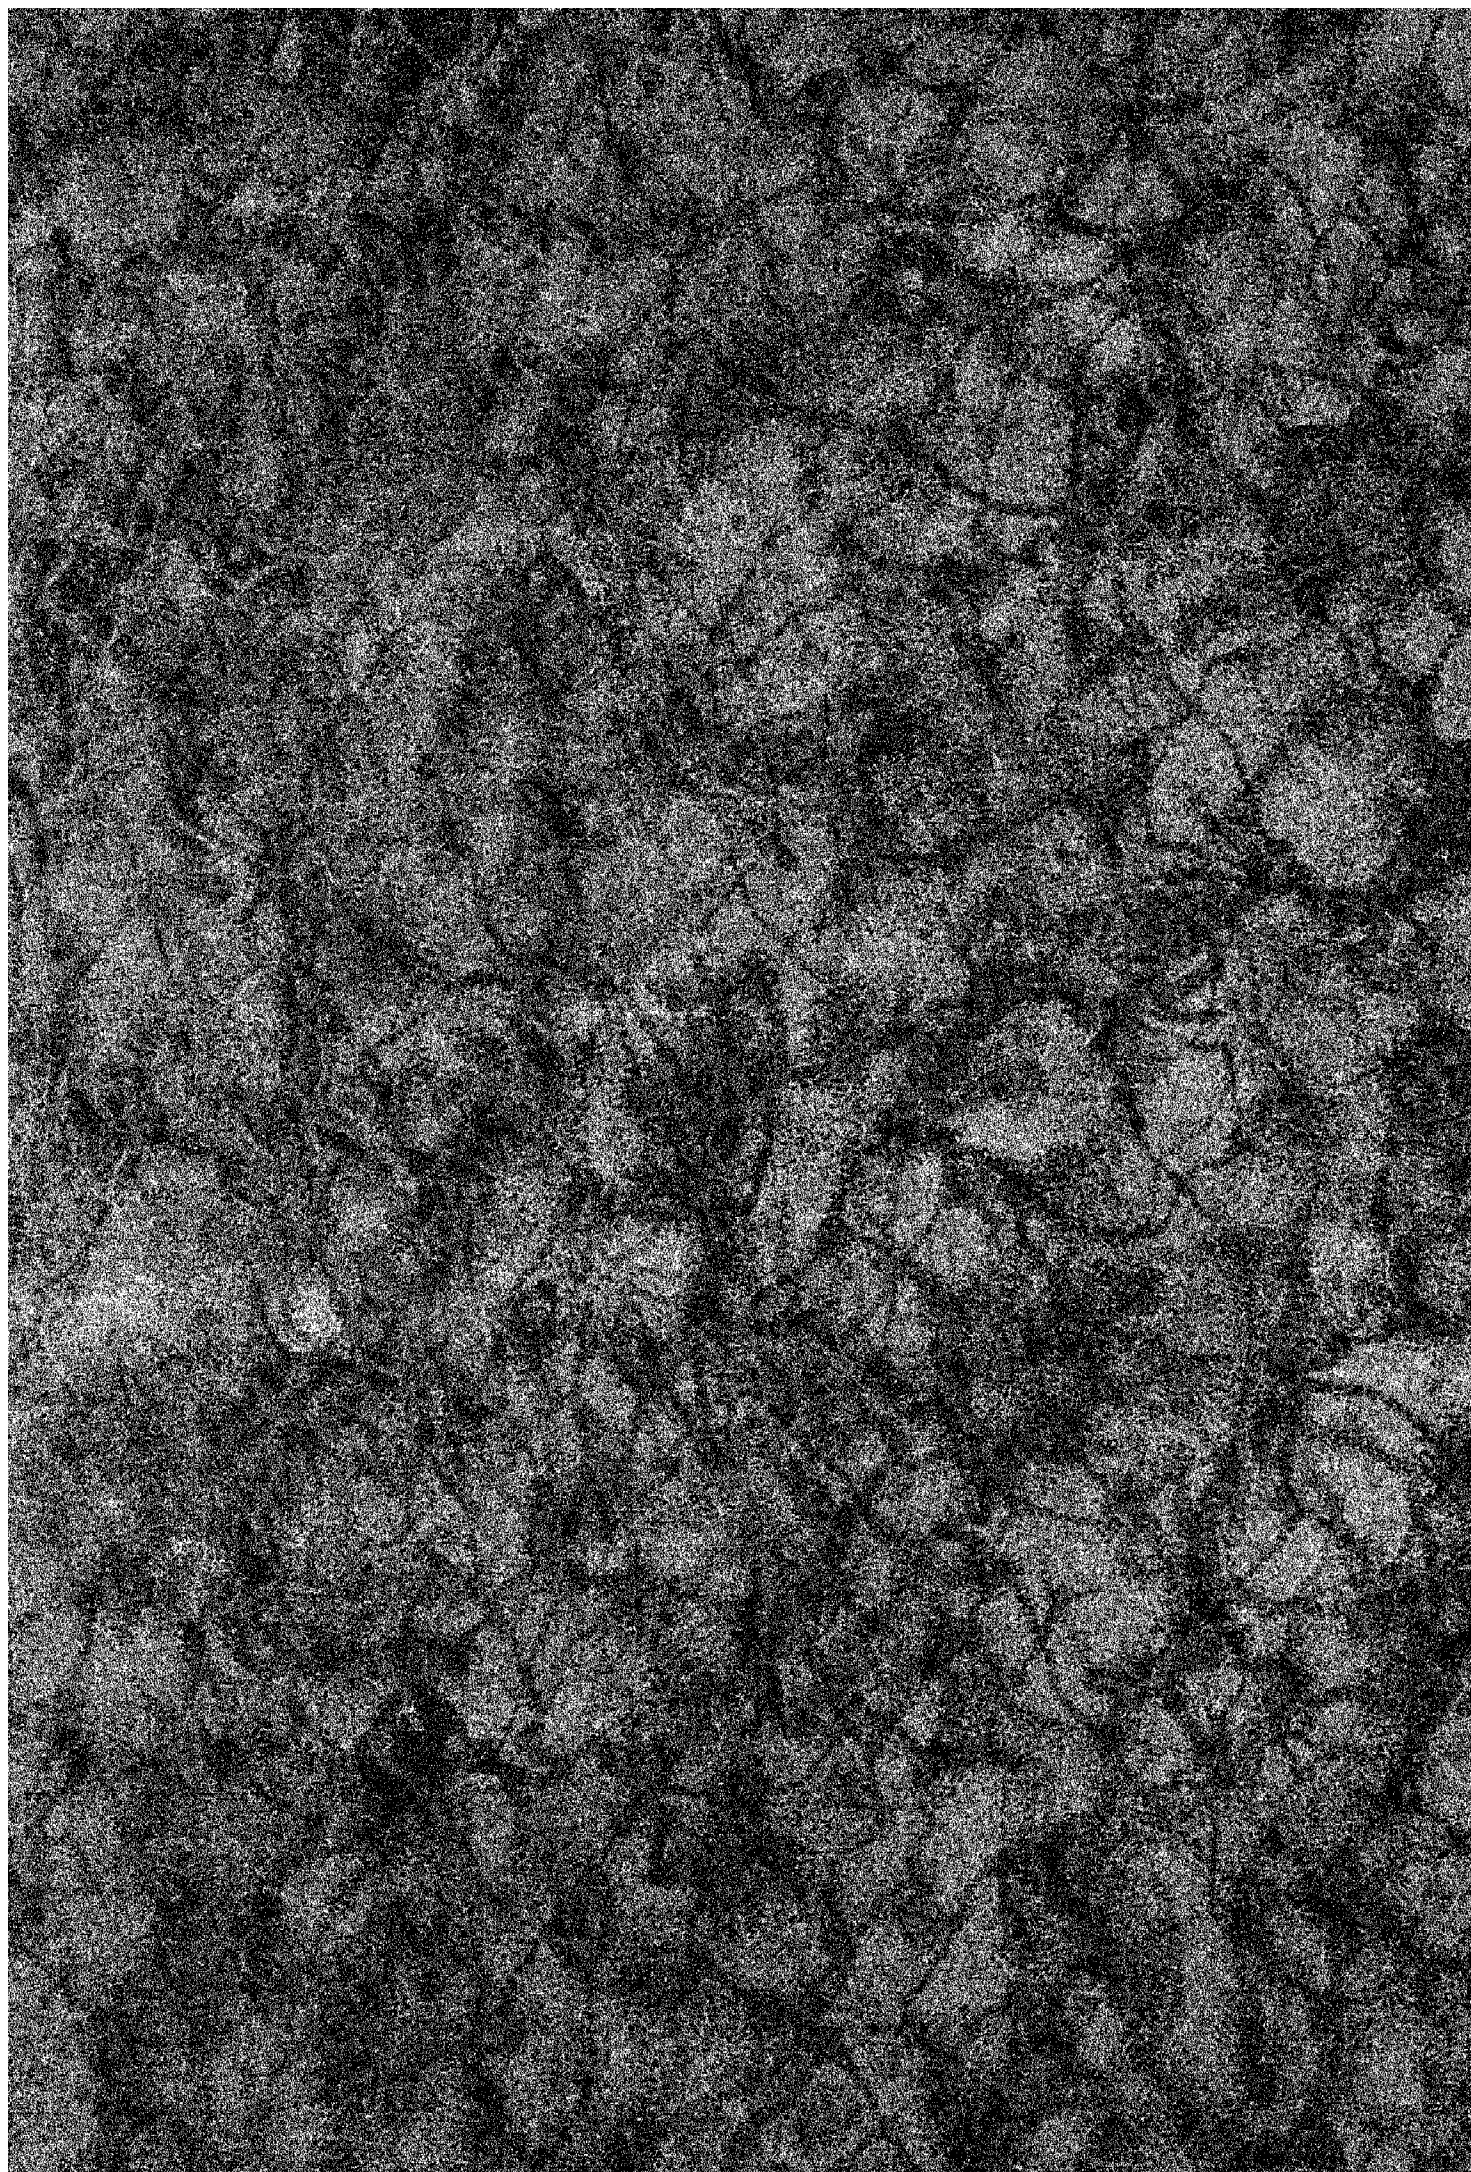

FROM THE VERY BIRTH of this troublesome infant, the sincere interest and ability of Mr. Jack Housez, the illustrator, became apparent. Just as vital is his connection with the McDermid Studios Limited, the engravers, who have contributed so much to the finished product. Our visits to the Commercial Printers Limited have been most frequent, but Mr. Elmer F. Roper was always ready and willing to aid us. Nor are we unmindful of the good work done by Wally Beaumont, who delved deeply into 14th century England, the England of Chaucer, for the introductory remarks to each of the Campus scenes.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT, adequate only in the sincerity with which it is made, must be given to the immediate staff. It is the editorial staff, the layout staff and the business staff which has made possible the arrival at this last page. And so ends another Evergreen and Gold. The verdict of the public means much, it determines whether the book is a failure or a success. But even this is overshadowed by the joy of a long race won-- the content of achievement.

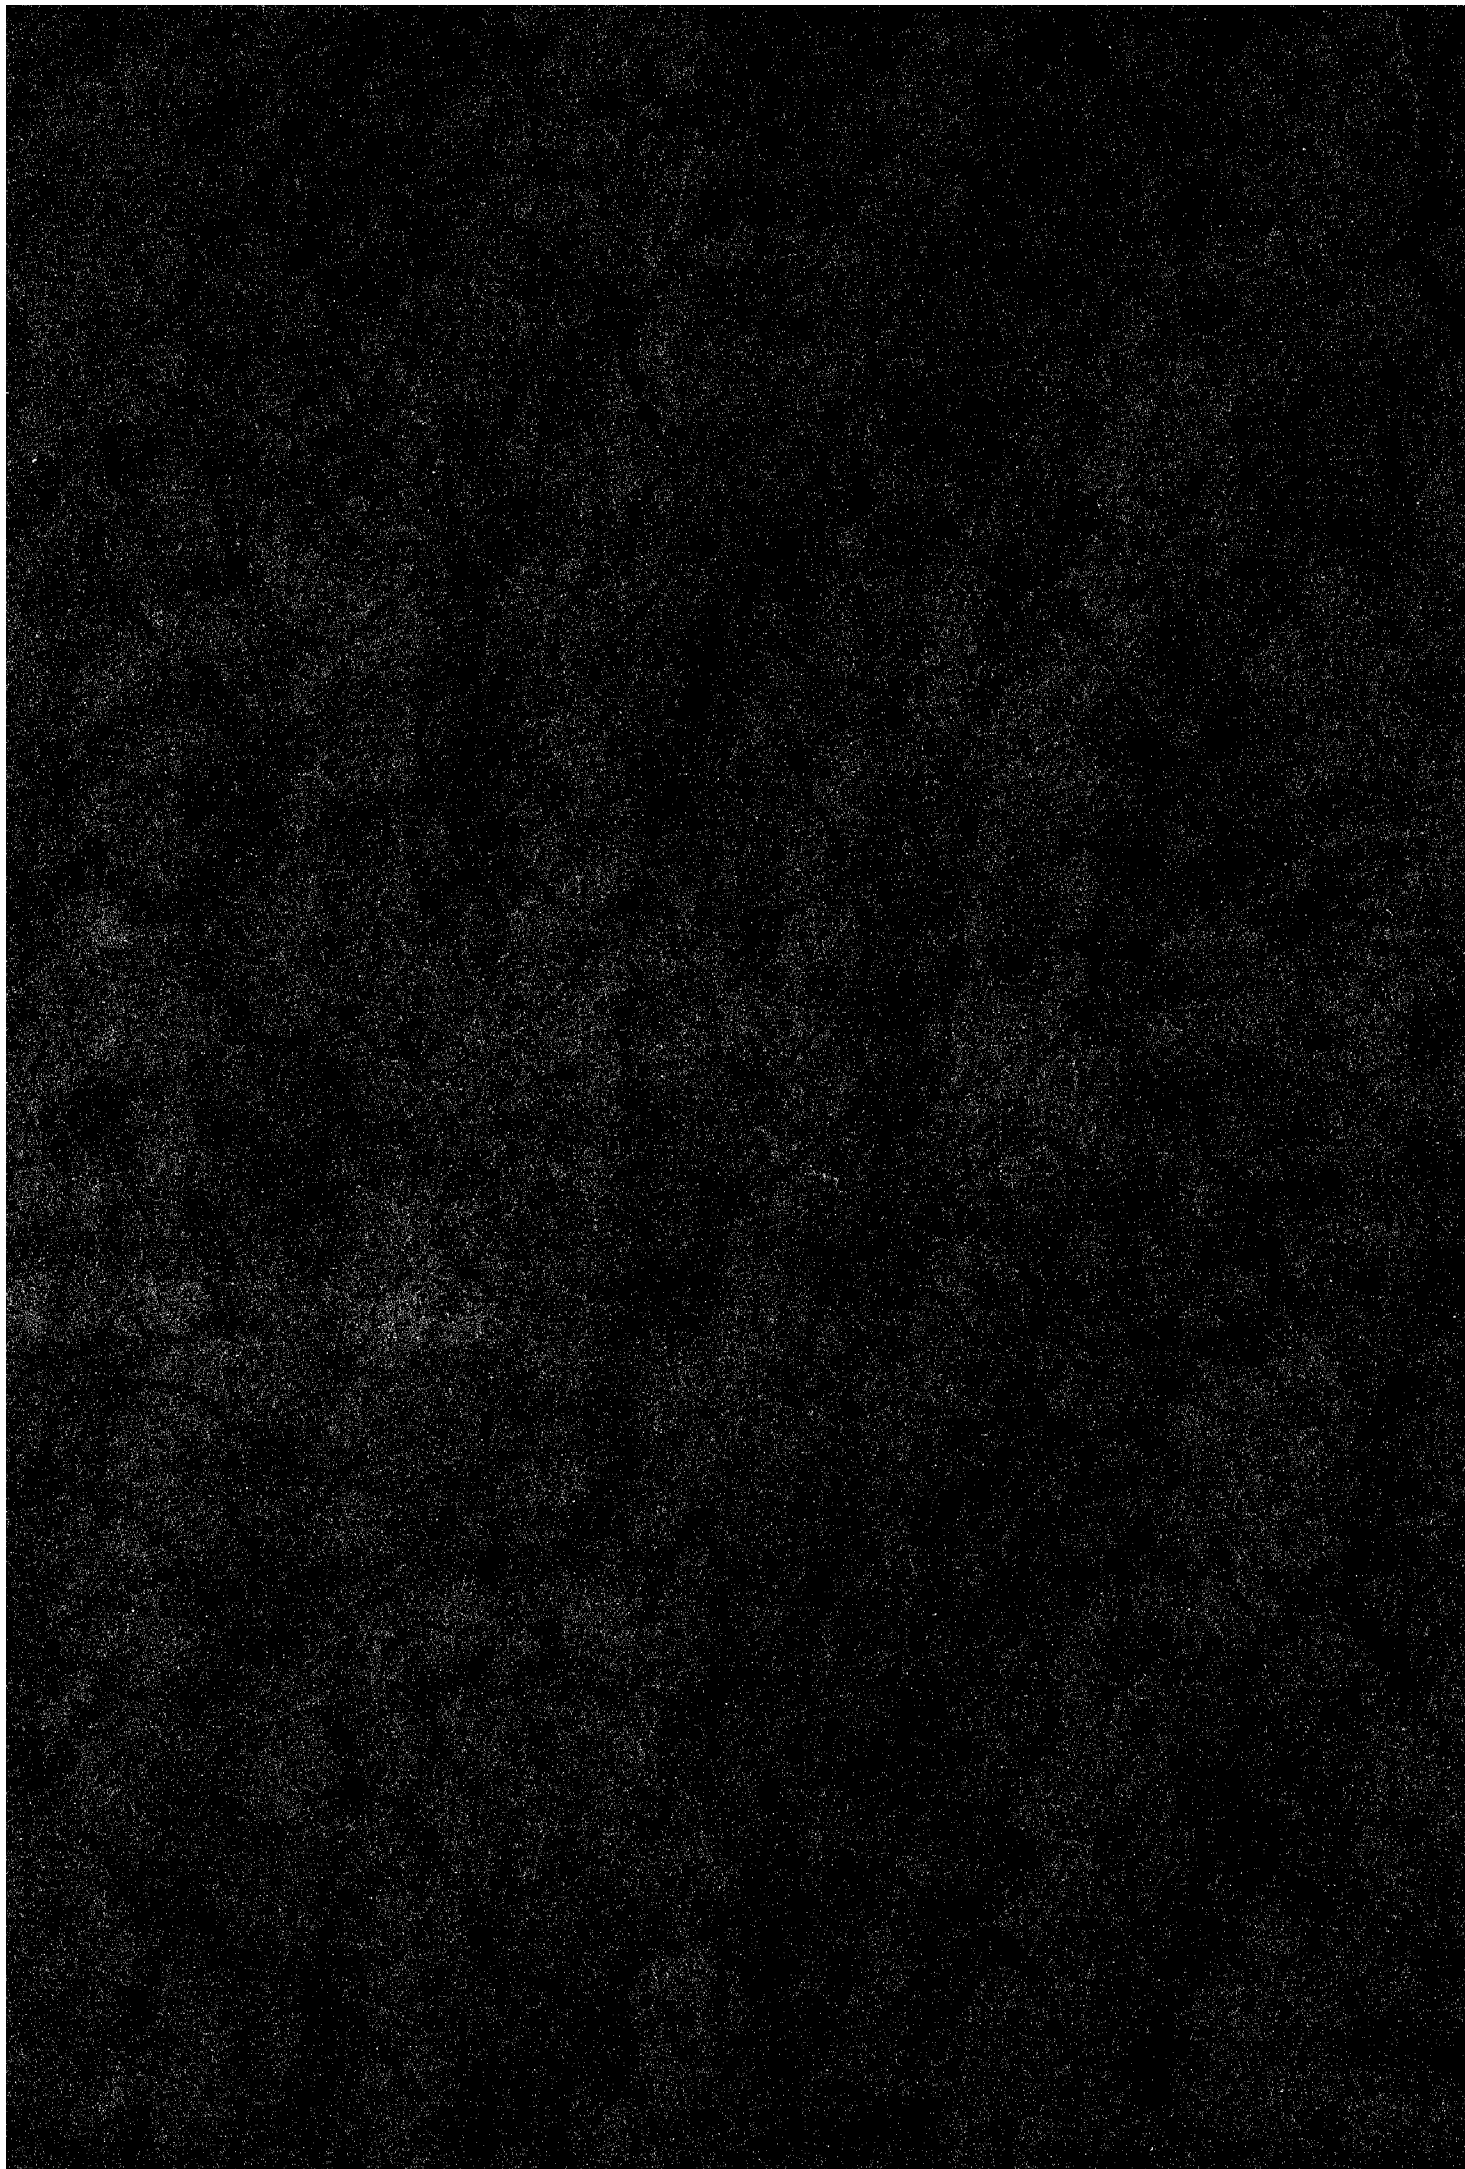

TO THOSE WHO GRADUATE this year, the XIV Anniversary of Evergreen and Gold, I can only say I hope you like it.
